Miraculous Mine Rescue Changes Everyday Life For Somerset Dairy Farmers

Bill and Lori Arnold of Lincoln Township in Somerset County hold their children Janna, 5, and Morgan, 3, outside on the lawn of their historic property, Dormel Farms. The farm was the site for the miraculous mine rescue in late July.

Farm Expo Prepares For Second Successful Year

GILBERT (Monroe Co.) —

The West End Fairgrounds, Gilbert, will be the site of the second annual Northeast Regional Small Farm and Rural Living Expo and Trade Show Sept. 21-22.

Located near the foothills of the Pocono mountains, the fairgrounds are a perfect setting for the various displays and demonstrations scheduled throughout the two-day event.

This year, Cornell Cooperative Extension has joined Penn State and Rutgers Cooperative Extensions along with several ag businesses, agencies, and producer and commodity groups to organize an even larger event than last year. The event last year was a real crowd pleaser as visitors were treated to many interesting demonstrations on equipment use, rotational pasture maintenance, Christmas tree production, and the use and care of various livestock species just to mention a few of the many displays and demonstrations positioned throughout the fairgrounds.

The expo is designed to provide a useful educational experience and networking opportunity for small farm owners and individuals interested in living in the country. Many newcomers to the rural way of life do not know the contacts or where to go for supplies and help in their new ventures. It is the hope of the organizers of this event that visitors will go away with the information and confidence they need to pursue their dreams.

Equipment demonstrations will include trailer design and safety, operation of small farm equipment, antique tractors, and portable sawmills.

The Parade of Horse Breeds, Alpaca Obstacle Course, and Oxen Driving exhibitors from last year will be returning and joined this year by a 4-H rabbit show, and display of rare breeds of sheep. The popular Border Collie sheep herding and free-range poultry demonstrations, both

For Week, Market Hog Prices Drop Below $20

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — On the heels of the $8-10 lower midwestern hog prices reported last week, at New Holland's hog auction Monday the reduced holiday supply of 49-54 percent lean, 220-280 pound barrows and gilts sold $18-20 per hundredweight — fully $7 lower than the previous Monday's prices.

Hog prices are at the lowest levels since November 1998 when many pork producers were forced out of business as the prices went as low as $10 a hundredweight. The weekly hog average price at the Lancaster County auctions dropped to $15.35 for the week ended Dec. 18, 1998.

What pork producers were or are trying to avoid is a market disaster in the fourth quarter of 2002 similar to the one in 1998 when hog marketings overwhelmed the capacity of the slaughter plants.

Producers have evidently taken the advice of the analysts to market hogs earlier at lighter weights to avoid the predicted large, burdensome numbers in November and December.

As much as we try to find otherwise, in the midst of a lot of analyzing, it's still supply and demand that rules the marketplace. There are huge supplies of all meats filling the packers coolers and the frozen storage. The decline in exports has helped to overpower the domestic demand. The "other white meat" has had to contend with large poultry stocks that should have been exported to Russia, plus all that other red meat (beef).

At the Midwest terminal markets, last Thursday (Aug. 29), prices on 47-51 percent lean, 220-270 pound hogs ranged from $17-19 — that was $9.50-10 lower than the previous Friday. One market report noted that it was the largest one-week decline ever on a terminal market.

In the Eastern Cornbelt trade last Friday, prices on carcass basis lean hogs ranged $24.25-32.13, weighted average price $28.92, which is $8.69 lower than a week ago. Midweek reports indicate $26.23. It was generally thought that the hog market was ready to level off after the Labor Day holiday. It didn't happen.

Instead, what did happen was the release of both the USDA's Aug. 1 Monthly Pig Report and the USDA's weekly slaughter report Friday last week. First, the July 2002 U.S. Pig Crop was reported at 8.68 million head, 2 percent more than the previous year. Sows farrowing during this period totaled 980,000 head, also 2 percent above last year. Second, the livestock slaughter report had the hog slaughter numbers estimated at more than two million hogs for the week.

A new round of pressure hit the hog market Monday and live hogs and future prices declined sharply. It sounded like a good idea to increase marketings in SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Life has never been the same since Bill Arnold and his family, dairy farmers of Lincoln Township in Somerset County, awoke to their dog barking shortly before 2 a.m. Thursday, July 25.

The dog barking ironically symbolizes a moment in time when life was systematically commonplace on their 135-head milking operation at Dormel Farms.

That early morning, Bill told his wife Lori he was going out to see what all the commotion was about over by the mines. He knew something was up and by view of his bedroom window, it looked serious.

"I saw a vehicle parked up there and there were people with flashlights, which is call to alarm on a farm, so I got dressed and went out," explained Arnold, whose wife, Lori, stayed at home with their two small children Janna, 5, and Morgan, 3.

"I knew one of the engineers, and he told me there was a mine accident with nine guys trapped in a mine underneath my farm," said Arnold. "I said 'what can I do to help?' and the rescue began. I never slept until they got out."

Although the dairy farmer and part-time auctioneer knew that mining accidents have happened in Somerset County before and several mine shafts were underneath his farm, he never imagined he would be part of an unbelievable story of drama and rescue that would gather the attention of the whole nation and world.

In the early morning hours of July 25, 18 miners were finishing up their 3 p.m.-11 p.m. shift the day before when danger struck suddenly. An old mine barrier broke, trapping nine of the men underground and allowing the other nine to barely escape with their lives.

After 77 hours of edge-of-seat tension with media crews from around the world focused on this desperate scenario at Quecreek Mine, the miners were miraculously pulled to safety from above, all unharmed.

"There were hundreds of people giving 100 percent and more to make this a glorious outcome and what a glorious outcome it was," said Arnold, who worked furiously alongside fire department personnel, engineers, and other mine officials in order to free the trapped miners.

Arnold explained that the will of the rescue personnel to free the miners safely was as strong as the will of the miners to survive and come to the surface.

"Everyone who came here came here with one thing on their minds — to get those guys out safely. Everyone was thrown headlong into this, but never questioned it. They never thought 'can we do this?' We just thought 'we will do this, they can't die, we won't let them die,'" said Arnold.

Lori Arnold, who is originally from neighboring Cambria Coun-

FRIDAY THE 13TH

Triskaidekaphobia? That's fear of the number 13. Most hotel designers bow to it: you'll notice there's no 13th floor. For some people, Friday the 13th makes triskaidekaphobia even worse. It's argued that there were 13 people at the Last Supper and that the crucifixion of Christ happened on a Friday. Some ships refuse to embark on Friday the 13th; for others, it only has to be a Friday to keep them in port. Winston Churchill wouldn't travel on Friday the 13th—too unlucky. Male song sparrows evidently don't suffer from triskaidekaphobia, however. They keep singing for about 13 minutes after sunset.

We are all tattooed in our cradles with the beliefs of our tribe.

Oliver Wendell Holmes Sr. American physician and author (1809-1894)

TIP OF THE WEEK

Don't harvest potatoes until the frost has killed the tops down.

salt, to taste
3 tablespoons grated onion

Lancaster Farming

Delivered From Disaster

These days, it seems that Somerset County is the center of the world. First there was Flight 93 that crashed on Sept. 11 last year. Then there was the Quecreek coal mining accident at the end of July where, thank the powers-that-be, all nine miners were rescued. What a story!

We read on page 1 this issue about Lori and Bill Arnold and their round-the-clock efforts to ensure a physical and even moral victory — as well as a much-needed morale victory for the entire country — in the rescue success.

The Arnolds operate a dairy. But their work exemplifies a lot bigger story of the need for volunteers and cooperation.

It also touched home.

The reason I am editor of Lancaster Farming could very well be attributed to a mining accident.

My father was a coal miner in Schuylkill County for about a decade. One day, there was a mining cave-in, and miners were killed.

My father, spooked by the whole thing, decided he didn't want to die in a mine. So he escaped the industry, enlisted in the Army-Air Force during World War II, entered college on the G.I. bill, graduated from Penn State . . . and, in the 1950s, moved his family to Lancaster County.

Later on, he bought land from a farmer in Lancaster, purchased a house, and began a life far removed from mining.

That's why my family is here. A mining accident!

How many people's lives will be affected the same way? Who will move out and get away from the dangerous job of coal mining? Who will stay? In what drastic, far-reaching ways will the families of the Somerset County coal miners be affected? What impacts could this entire event have on agriculture?

It certainly makes you wonder.

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

On Aug. 29 at his town meeting in Towanda, Pennsylvania Sen. Arlen Specter announced that he would take the inequities facing all dairy farmers to the U.S. Senate floor.

During the senator's presentation to the crowd, I reminded the senator of his speech to the U.S. Senate following former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman and Specter's visit to Keystone College a few years ago. After I reviewed current milk prices (comparable to 1979) and the problems with an excessive amount of dairy products being imported into the U.S., Sen. Specter paced the floor and announced he would go to the Senate floor with the dairy farmers problems. Specter said he was annoyed to see consumers (like himself) pay more for milk while dairy farmers are continually receiving less.

Specter told the crowd he favored a reasonable floor price under the dairy farmers prices based on the dairy farmer's production costs. The senator further told the crowds both in Towanda and Wellsboro that the excessive amounts of dairy products being imported must be addressed. He also agreed there should be an investigation concerning the dairy farmers' continuing inequities.

Let's hope that Senator Specter's remarks to the U.S. Senate will inspire other senators to support him. All dairy farmers should immediately contact their elected officials and have them support Sen. Specter's efforts.

Remember there are nearly 12 billion pounds of milk coming into the U.S. per year in the form of manufactured products. Remember these imports are clogging up our markets and forcing prices to our dairy farmers down to the 1979 level. It's evident to me there are dairy farmers across the U.S. talking about various methods to consider in an attempt to correct the inequities facing dairy farmers.

Now Is The Time By Leon Ressler Lancaster County Extension Director

To Continue To Conserve Water And Develop Emergency Water Supply Options

While recent rainfall has brought some short-term relief, drought conditions continue to worsen. In Lancaster, rainfall for August was 2.5 inches, one inch below normal. This brings the rainfall deficit for the last 365 days to 14.3 inches. Since January of 2000 we are 36 inches below normal rainfall. Obviously it will take a lot of wet weather to begin to replenish our water table.

Surface flows are way below normal as well. On Sept. 3, flow in the Conestoga River at Lancaster was 66 cubic feet per second (cfs), which is only 27 percent of the normal flow for this time of the year of 244 cfs. The Susquehanna at Safe Harbor had a flow rate of 3,500 cfs on Sept. 3, compared to a normal flow rate of 12,300 cfs.

The long-term accumulation of rainfall deficits is continuing to put pressure on our groundwater supplies. Well drillers are swamped with work and have a waiting list that can run two weeks or more. If you are dependent on a single well for your water supply, it would be a good idea to develop a backup system in case your only well goes dry.

One plan could be to get on the well driller's list and drill a backup so you don't have to wait if that occurs. If you do want to drill, I would recommend consulting a hydrogeologist first to help you choose locations to drill. Another backup plan would be to install a storage tank so you could utilize trucked-in water for a short-term solution, if needed.

To Participate In Horse Owners' Survey

Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences will conduct an economic impact study of the Pennsylvania equine industry beginning fall 2002. The study will provide knowledge of the current scope and nature of Pennsylvania's equine community, enhancing government and citizen understanding.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, through the State Horse and Harness Racing commissions, has contracted with the department of dairy and animal science to conduct the survey. It will assess the composition and nature of Pennsylvania's equine industry, including its direct and indirect impact on the state's economy through sales, employment, taxes, and other indicators.

Contributions to the quality of life of equine owners and participants in equine activities also will be assessed. Data from Pennsylvania's last study of the economic impact of horses in the state was collected in 1990. It showed that the equine industry generated $4 billion in annual economic activity, was responsible for 22,000 jobs, and provided local and state governments with more than $66 million a year in tax revenue.

"The Pennsylvania Quarter Horse Association, Pennsylvania Equine Council, and the Pennsylvania Horse and Harness Racing commissions have committed to support this very important survey by providing addresses," said Ann Swinker, extension horse specialist, who is directing the survey. "It is key that the list we develop be representative of the entire industry.

"We will be asking every equine association with membership in the state and individual horse owners to provide their addresses so they are represented in this study," she said. "The addresses will be held in confidence and used only for the distribution of questionnaires. After the study is completed, all records will be destroyed. We want to assure everyone that this will be horse people measuring horse people."

Swinker pointed out that the survey needs a high return rate to develop valid results. "We will be undertaking a public relations campaign to ask that those who receive a questionnaire take the time to complete and return it," she explained. "A postage-paid envelope will accompany the questionnaire. Returned questionnaires will be coded and information entered into a computer database for analysis. A descriptive report of the findings will be prepared and published."

Swinker encourages all horse owners and equine organizations to participate in the study. Equine groups interested in contributing their mailing lists or individual horse owners wanting to participate in the study should contact Ann Swinker, The Pennsylvania State University, 324 Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802. For more information, call Swinker at (814) 865-7810 or e-mail her at aswinker@psu.edu.

"We prefer the lists be sent on disk, but will gladly take them in any form," she said. "The Pennsylvania Horse and Harness Racing commissions are to be commended for their efforts to have the state agriculture funds awarded to conduct this much-needed equine population study for Pennsylvania."

The findings of the study will be available to user groups, free of charge, both in print and in electronic format. The project report is slated to be completed and available in the spring of 2003.

'THE SHEEP' AND 'THE GOATS'

Background Scripture:
2 Chronicles 33:1-20; 2 Kings 21.
Devotional Reading:
2 Chronicles 6:36-42.

Our state is engrossed in an election contest for the office of governor. It is the most expensive campaign in Texas history, and it is also one of the most demoralizing. To me, it appears that both candidates seem devoted to the dehumanization of their opponent. One might truly wonder whether voting for either of them is justified.

Unfortunately, our political life is hobbled by a "sheep" and "goats" mentality. We are the "sheep," the "good guys" and our opponents are the "goats," the "bad guys." We assume that the "bad guy" can never do anything "good" and the "good guy" can never do anything "bad." We see nothing wrong with our candidate and nothing good about his opponent.

The "sheep" are real Americans and patriotic and the "goats" are not. It is tragic that, after more than two centuries of democracy, we are no further evolved than that.

We also have a "sheep" and

"goats" problem when we consider the reign of Manasseh, King of Judah from 687 to 642 B.C. Manasseh was the son of King Hezekiah, the moderate reformer of Judah, and Queen Hepzibah and the biblical account of his reign, 55 years, the longest in Judah, is recorded in 2 Chron. 3:1-20 and 2 Ki. 21:1-18. (That reminds me of the teacher who said that, not only was little Johnny the worst kid in her class, "but he has such perfect attendance!")

Remembered As 'Evil'

Manasseh, however, was not "a chip off the old block" and he is remembered as one of the most evil kings of Judah. Both sources stamp him as a "bad guy." "He did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to the abominable practices of the nations whom the Lord drove out before the people of Israel" (2 Chron. 33:2; 2 Ki. 21:2).

It is ironic that one of the best kings of Judah is followed by one of the worst. Simply put, he undid all of the reforms which Hezekiah, his father, had instituted. More specifically, "...he rebuilt the high places which his father Hezekiah had broken down and made altars to Baals, and made Asherahs, and worshiped all the host of heaven, and served them" (2 Chron. 33:4; 2 Ki. 21:3-5).

The "high places" were Canaanite shrines on hilltops and the Baals and Asherah were pagan gods. 2 Kings 21:6, 16 lists three additional charges: "And he burned his son as an offering, and practiced soothsaying and augury," and "Moreover, Manasseh shed very much innocent blood. . ."

Why did he choose such an evil course? Perhaps, as with so many sons, he was driven to demonstrate that he was his own man and no longer under his father's thumb. Perhaps he did these things because they were popular with his subjects. The priests of the high places were probably supportive of the re-establishment of their shrines. Furthermore, we know that Assyria dominated the known world then and Manasseh probably held on to his throne at the sufferance of the Assyrians. The Assyrianization of Judah's religious life may have been an attempt to maintain Assyria's favor.

Good Intentions

Manasseh may have been impelled by what he regarded as good reasons to overthrow his father's reforms. Even "bad guys" often think they are justified by good intentions. But his reign would be judged by the results and these were so devastating that even "good" King Josiah, who succeeded Manasseh's son, would be only partially successful in reforming the nation.

For all their agreement, 2 Chronicles and 2 Kings give two differing accounts of Manasseh, the former telling us that he was carried away into captivity by the Assyrians, and then repented, returning to Jerusalem and attempting to remove the pagan cults. 2 Kings 21 says nothing of any of this, depicting him as a thoroughly evil. But 2 Chronicles sees him as a "bad guy" who wasn't totally "bad."

Who was the real Manasseh? We will never know, but I would like to believe that 2 Chronicles is the more accurate one, for it reminds us that God will grant mercy to us if we are repentant. None of us are intended to be "goats."

HELP WANTED

"The biggest benefit is the labor savings."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day; and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design. The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs. The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."

Start Clean Next Spring with Fall Sprays

If weather delays next spring's burndown applications you could wind up with some real weed-control headaches in your Roundup Ready soybean fields. That's where a well-planned timely fall herbicide application can help.

Fall applications provide early burndown of actively growing weeds plus residual weed control to help you plant into clean fields next spring - just like spring burndowns do. But with a fall application your fields will dry down faster for earlier planting and insects may be fewer due to less weed vegetation. Populations of soybean cyst nematode may also be reduced.

Fall applications of Pxythion WDG herbicide at 0.8 to 1.0 ounce 1 pint of 2-4-D and 1 pint of Glyphomax Plus herbicide per acre control tough weeds like purple deadnettle and henbit plus common chickweed, marestail, shepherdspurse, butterweed, field pennycress, yellow rocket, wild mustard, and early flushes of lambsquarters.

Make your fall application when soil temperatures have dropped to 50 degrees F and are continuing to fall. This will help Pxythion WDG remain stable in the soil until it activates next spring.

One more benefit that Pxythion WDG provides is the flexibility to plant corn if market or weather conditions dictate a change. Corny XL herbicide restricts growers to soybeans.

When next spring arrives you can use one 32-ounce post application of Glyphomax Plus to clean up any remaining weeds in your Roundup Ready soybeans. Or you can tank-mix 0.3 ounces of FirstRate herbicide with reduced rates of Glyphomax Plus to common and giant ragweed, cocklebur, sunflowers or velvetleaf - a common weed problem in your fields.

For more information about using Pxythion WDG and Glyphomax Plus herbicides in a fall-applied program contact your local ag retailer.

August 30, 2002 DEMAND FOR DAIRY PRODUCTS WAY OFF

- Cheese consumption weak.
- Nonfat dry milk way down.
- Butter down, too.

USDA's recent report on U.S. demand for milk and dairy products was fairly anemic. It suggests demand for cheese, particularly pizza cheese, is off relative to the strong growth experienced over the last decade. Demand for nonfat dry milk is off by a third. Butter consumption is down 4 percent, and fluid milk consumption is neutral.

These numbers, however, are no surprise to most market watchers. In fact, I would argue that they are already built into existing milk price numbers. Translation: the new report on milk consumption should neither raise nor lower futures or cash prices for dairy commodities in Chicago.

The demand numbers, called commercial disappearance, reflect the most recent three-month time period of April through June 2002. During this period, milk production in the U.S. grew 3 percent relative to the same period a year ago. Stocks of all dairy products on a milk fat basis grew 14.3 percent, and imports on a milk fat basis fell 23.3 percent.

Thus, the supply of dairy products on a milkfat basis grew 4.1 percent. That compares to commercial disappearance of all dairy products on a milkfat basis, which fell 0.6 percent. No wonder milk prices are declining!

More specifically, demand for dairy products during the period April-June 2002, with changes relative to a year ago, are butter, down 3.8 percent; American cheese, up 3.2 percent; other cheese (mainly mozzarella), up 0.3 percent; nonfat dry milk, down 33.6 percent; and fluid milk products, up 0.3 percent.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics also released estimates of U.S. city average retail prices for dairy products. The results are mixed. Some dairy products, such as butter and fluid milk, adjusted lower in relation to a sharp reduction in the cost of most dairy ingredients (mainly butterfat and protein). Whole milk in July fell 6.3 percent relative to a year ago. Butter retail prices in July fell 12.8 percent.

Butter appears to be the most responsive in terms of the farm-to-retail price spread. On the other hand, cheese and ice cream retail prices actually rose relative to a year ago. Natural cheese in July rose 5.6 percent, and ice cream rose 4.4 percent. You will recall that the main ingredient in the production of ice cream, milkfat (cream), at the wholesale levels is about half what it was a year ago.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Farm Show Complex Construction Update

Hon. Samuel E. Hayes Jr.
Pa. Secretary of Agriculture

Building For The Future - On Schedule

Editor's note: Written by Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. exclusively for Lancaster Farming, this column provides monthly updates on the exciting new construction under way at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. Construction is on schedule to be completed for the 2003 Farm Show.

As one goes by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's massive construction at our Farm Show Complex, a new feature can now be seen punctuating the skyline.

It is different than the long, sweeping roof lines of the new Exposition Hall, new Large Arena, new Livestock Barn, and the new Concourse.

The eclectic design you can see is the peaked-dome of the rotunda, which will greet visitors as they go from the current facility into the new venues. The dome is a very modest reflection of the State Capitol Building and agriculture's important role in public policy.

This dome will not be opulent like the two domes that grace our beautiful State Capitol Complex.

Our peaked dome will not have stately columns or other grand accents. Nor should it. That would be too much, too expensive, and not practical in the Farm Show Complex.

But our small peaked dome and its circular rotunda are nevertheless an architectural expression that will serve as a tie to our state capitol and agriculture's historical and primary role in the department of Pennsylvania.

Agriculture has been a mighty contributor to Pennsylvania's economic, social, and political governance since our colonial period through present day.

The small, peaked dome is translucent and will allow natural light to brighten the rotunda portion of the new pedestrian concourse. It will make it possible for a person to look up to the heavens, which provide Pennsylvania and America with the many blessings of our bountiful agriculture.

Fast-track progress continues to be made in all venues. In terms of the new construction, completion has already been achieved or is within reach before the Pennsylvania Farm Show in January.

As of this writing, the percent-completion for new construction is as follows: new Livestock Barn (100 percent, new Large Arena (90 percent, new Expo Hall (60 percent, and new Concourse (80 percent lower level, 60 percent upper level).

Upgrades within the current Farm Show Complex are also forging ahead. For instance, the upgrade of the current Small Arena is 80 percent complete (new seats, new auctioneer/public announcer block, new enclosed observation deck, and air conditioning). Contractors have "roughed-in" the new 4-H and FFA dormitory/business center and the same is true of what has been referred to as the current Family Living Center.

There are 500-700 construction workers of every skill and trade on site each day. They are doing a great job!

In addition to the construction frenzy, we are entering a very busy event season at the Farm Show Complex. It would have been easier to not schedule events during the construction. But we opted to continue our big fall events such as the All-American Dairy Show, Keystone International Livestock Evaluation, Pennsylvania National Horse Show, State 4-H Horse Show, Standardbred Sale, and others. We will achieve both — events and construction, all at the same time.

Construction at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture also continues at our new Livestock Evaluation Center. An extraordinary amount of site development work had to be done so this facility will be world-class and the best in the U.S. Steel will be set in the very near future.

Our current evaluation center is 17,000 square feet. Our new Livestock Evaluation Center will be 178,000 square feet (10 times larger).

All of this historic construction at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is for the purpose of building for the future.

The eclectic design you can see is the peaked dome of the rotunda, which will greet visitors as they go from the current facility into the new venues. The dome is a very modest reflection of the State Capitol Building and agriculture's important role in public policy.

Farm Show 2003 Exhibitor Spotlight

Lancaster Farming

Hamilton Equipment Returns To Farm Show

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — "Our state legislators have committed significant state funds to build the new exhibitor hall. The enthusiasm of the Farm Show commission and their employees is contagious," said David Rupp, sales manager of Hamilton Equipment, Inc.

"It seems like a total renewed commitment by the state," he said. "I really don't know of any other state in our area that has new facilities like these."

The Farm Show, Rupp believes, will be worth the time and effort of the company.

After a two-year hiatus from exhibiting at the Farm Show, the business will return to the event, partly because of the financial commitment which shows renewed efforts by the state, said Rupp.

Hamilton Equipment has been exhibiting at the Pennsylvania Farm Show since 1940.

The business will have 5,600 square feet at the Farm Show.

Although the designated

"Farmer Days" will be important to the business, the week ends are also critical, said Rupp.

"We have quite a bit of business from weekend and hobby farmers, who also contribute a great deal to the bottom line," he said. The company "is not limited to high-horsepower tractors. I think Hamilton Equipment has products that apply to both customers."

Hamilton Equipment, founded in 1938 by Bob Hamilton Sr. and run by his son, Bob Hamilton, is a wholesale distributor selling farm equipment through a network of servicing dealers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia.

Bob Hamilton Sr., who grew up on the farm was the lone sales man. The business has grown from a main warehouse to a 4,000 square foot building in downtown Ephrata to include seven territory managers in a six-state area.

Products distributed by Ham ilton Equipment include Danuser post hole diggers, DEMCO sprayers, Herd seeders, Kelley backhoes and loaders, Westfield grain augers, and Worksaver farm products.

The company has expanded to include Hamilton Distributing, a paint distribution business with more than 140 paint products for residential customers.

Hamilton Equipment employs 70 people in their three warehouses at Ephrata, Raphine, Va., and Leola. The Leola warehouse is a separate warehouse for paint distribution and has a separate sales force.

"The support of Pennsylvania's farmers is the reason we have grown from a company with 4,000 square feet of warehouse to our current facilities with 70,000 square feet in Ephrata and 33,000 square feet in Raphine, Virginia," said Rupp.

For more information, their Website is www.HamInc.com.

New Tool Helps Dairy Producers Stay Posted On Animal Diseases

COLUMBUS, Ohio — As part of an industry-wide initiative to address animal health issues, dairy producers now have a new tool to help spot and fight Foot-and-Mouth Disease (FMD) — a dairy industry-specific brochure that details essential information about the disease.

The brochure, Foot-and-Mouth Disease and the Dairy Industry's Emergency Preparedness, is a joint effort among the dairy checkoff-funded Dairy Management Inc., the U.S. Dairy Export Council, the National Milk Producers Federation and the International Dairy Foods Association. As a cost-savings measure, the brochure was mailed to all U.S. dairy farmers with the 2001 DMI Annual Report, which provides an overview of 2001 dairy checkoff program.

Additionally, the brochure contains a special pullout, wall-size poster printed in both English and Spanish that outlines key on-farm biosecurity tips.

"The brochure and poster are meant to inform the entire dairy industry about how we can all pitch in to help keep FMD out of the United States," says Scott Higgins, CEO of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East.

Information covered in the brochure, which was reviewed extensively by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the American Association of Bovine Practitioners, includes:

- Basic information about FMD and how it's spread.

- Basic on-farm biosecurity measures.

- How to spot FMD signs and symptoms.

- What steps the government would take in the event of an FMD outbreak.

- How producers can best respond to questions about FMD from the public.

"We urge dairy producers to read these materials, review them with their families and employees, and keep them as a reference in the unlikely event that they spot symptoms of FMD," Higgins says.

If you would like to receive a copy of the FMD brochure, please e-mail fmdbrochure@omfz.com or call (515) 246-3514 with your contact information.

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2708	1557
LAST WEEK	2539	1704
LAST YEAR	2277	1608

CATTLE: Compared to last week, slaughter steers sold steady to .50 lower. Holstein steers were in very light supply this week, with the few available trading mostly steady. Slaughter heifer receipts continue to be light, therefore a market trend was not established. Breaking and boning cows sold mostly steady, weakening late in the week. Slaughter bulls sold mostly steady, with prices firming up at the end of the week on a good run and demand. The direct feedyards in the Southern Plains continue to hold out this week as the Northern yards have already moved some cattle 1.00-2.00 lower on a dressed basis, at mostly 99.00. The few live sales that have been reported are ranging from 60.00-65.00, however with a weighted average ranging from mostly 62.00- 63.00, steady money this week would be a victory. An abundance of competitive proteins remain on the market, with butcher hogs finally breaking through the 20.00 barrier after a two week dive. This cheaply priced white meat sitting in grocery stores has added a lot of unneeded pressure to the red meat industry, with boxed beef values already 3.50-4.00 lower than this time a week ago. This weeks supply included 34 percent slaughter steers, 4 percent slaughter heifers, 33 percent cows, 2 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1265-1415 lbs 65.00-67.00, fancy singles from 67.00-67.75. Yield Grade 2 1045-1900 lbs 42.00-46.00, low dressing or lightweight 735-1195 lbs 39.50-46.00. CALVES: Compared to last week, vealers sold steady to 5.00 lower. Large slaughter calves were not well tested. Holstein bulls returning to the farm sold up to 10.00 higher to kick off the week, with demand very light late in the week with prices sharply lower. Holstein heifers started the week 15.00-25.00 lower, with demand picking up late in the week for prices to close steady to firm.

VEALERS: Standard and Good 80-125 lbs 25.00-40.00. Utility 40-90 lbs 10.00-30.00.

SLAUGHTER CALVES: Not well tested due to very light supplies.

THE LEADER IN THE FIELD

Dairy Entries Impress Judges At Plainfield Farmers' Fair

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent
BANGOR (Northampton Co.) — The Plainfield Farmers' Fair, Bangor, was the site of the Northampton County Open and 4-H Dairy Shows recently.

Judge Adam Sonnen of Sonnen Holsteins, a family owned and operated dairy with 70 head on test and a total herd of 140 near Richland, Lebanon County, and a graduate of Morrisville State University, N.Y., with a dairy science degree reviewed the near 70 entries of the open dairy show.

Sonnen selected Savage-Leigh Progress Sunee, the Sept. 2001 senior calf class winner of Bryant

The senior champion and reserve champion colored breed titles went to the entries of Brian Kromer, Easton.

Senior and champion colored breed honors went to Kromer's Prosper Jester Misty. The Sept. 1993 aged cow class winner is no stranger to the winners circle and was described by the judge as a real fine cow that at 9 years old has held together well — he especially liked her style and balance. This cow was also part of the second place produce of dam class and part of the first place dam and daughter class. These group classes included competition of all breeds in consideration for the winner's spot.

and Jim Kromer, respectively, were Burleigh's choice for champion and reserve champion showman titles.

Fehnel, 12, of Easton, will be in the seventh grade at Shawnee Middle School. Fehnel said her favorite part of the dairy project is showing her animals in the ring. Reserve fitter Stephanie Brewer, 11, will be in sixth grade at DeFranco Elementary. Brewer brought seven of her nine owned animals to the fair.

Champion showman, Charlene Barlieb, of Juniperdale Farm, is a 10th grade student at Pen Argyl High School where she is active in several school activities. Reserve champion showman, Jim Kromer, 17, also of Easton, will be a junior at Bangor High School.

Moving into the breed competition Judge Burleigh selected the March 2001 winner of the junior yearling class owned by Timothy Seipt as his junior champion of the Holstein show. Burleigh described the cow as an animal with all the style she needs and will be the entry to go the furthest when she gets to the 4-H district shows. The dam of this entry was the senior and grand champion Holstein of last year's open and 4-H dairy shows at the fair.

The reserve junior champion ribbon went to Kirbyville-J Mizer Pammy, the homebred entry of Jeremy Smith. Smith, 14, of Northampton will be a ninth grade student at Northampton High School.

The senior champion and champion Holstein winner was described by the judge as being a real flashy nice heifer and one that "does it all." The March Hlavaty as his junior champion in the Holstein competition. Reserve champion honors went to the Dec. 2000 Intermediate Yearling entry of Margaret Seipt, Keystone Bond Maggie.

The senior 3-year-old entry, Keystone Padre Leigh, a Dec. 1998 daughter of Keystone Juror Padre and Keystone Luke Leah, also owned by Hlavaty was then tapped as Judge Sonnen's choice for senior champion of the Holstein show. Sonnen said you had to love the udder and dairy character of this animal.

The reserve senior champion title went to Keystone Farm's Nov. 1997 entry from the 4-year-old class, Pequest-Valley Emory Lee.

In the open colored breed show, Sonnen selected the Jan. 2002 Jersey entry of Stacy Brewer from the intermediate calf class as his junior champion colored breed.

Reserve champion colored breed honors went to Stephanie Brewer's Jersey entry, Brew-Line Berretta Diamond.

The reserve senior and reserve colored breed title went to Kromer's June 1998 4-year-old entry, BDK Berretta Marble.

The cow in milk (best udder) title went to Hlavaty's grand champion from the Holstein show.

The next morning Jarrod Burleigh judged the Northampton County 4-H Round-Up. Burleigh, a 2001 graduate of Delaware Valley College with a dairy science major, is currently a nutritionist dealing with the dairy industry. Burleigh and his wife own and operate Scarlet Summer Holsteins near Muncy.

The show started with the fitting and showmanship competition where Burleigh selected Amanda Fehnel, winner of the intermediate class, being named the champion fitter and Stephanie Brewer, the second place winner of the intermediate class moving into the reserve champion fitter spot. First and second place winners of the senior showmanship class, Charlene Barlieb 2000 junior 2-year-old class winner, Keystone Mattie Jewel, is owned by Timothy Seipt, 11, Easton. Seipt will be in the sixth grade at Lehigh Valley Seventh Day Adventist School and is in his third year of 4-H. Seipt, of Keystone Farm, said the best part of showing is working with the calves.

Reserve senior champion and reserve champion Holstein honors went to the Sept. 1999 Juniperdale Lil Bo Peep, winner of the senior 2-year-old class owned by Charlene Barlieb.

Moving onto the colored breed 4-H show Burleigh selected the owner-bred April 2002 Brown Swiss entry of Barlieb as his junior champion. Reserve junior champion honors of the colored breeds went to the owner-bred June 2001 Jersey summer yearling entry of Stephanie Brewer, Brew-Line Berretta Diamond.

Krissa Brewer then led her

June 1999 Jersey junior 3-year-old, Vall-Haven Berretta Daffodil, into the senior champion and champion of the colored breeds spot. This daughter of Mason Boomer Sooner Beretta was described as a cow that pulls herself together nicer and is a lot wider and deeper in the front end than her opponents.

Stephanie Brewer's Jersey March 1999 entry from the same class then was selected as reserve senior and reserve champion of the colored breeds.

The fair posted the following results:

this quarter but there was evidently not enough consideration given to the huge supplies of meat to be consumed. (Beef production is expected to decline and just perhaps more poultry will again be moving to Russia.)

Prices at the retail meat counters in line with what the producers are receiving would be a step in the right direction to ease some of the pain, but that seldom happens fast enough, if at all. Most analysts today are not going out on the limb to say the worst is over in the hog price complex. If more breeding stock is sent to slaughter, that will add to the pork supplies. Many believe there is no quick fix for the hog market.

Foraging Around, the newsletter of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council (PFGC), includes information on growing and maintaining hay during drought. The fall issue scheduled for Sept. 14 in Lancaster Farming includes a hay growers' perspective on drought management, Pennsylvania grazing experiences, a bermudagrass feature, a northern Pennsylvania dairy grazer, and a full line of PFGC columnists.

drawing large crowds last year, will again be at the expo as will be common and exotic cattle breeds, beekeeping, goat production, and bison.

The Vegetable and Fruit Lecture Hall will be occupied by demonstrations and lectures on such subjects as weed identification and management; tomato, ethnic vegetable, cut flowers, blueberry and grape production; soil health; and fruit tree and medicinal herb presentations.

Environmental concerns such as watershed and water quality; manure, weed, and pond management; composting; farmland preservation; and alternative energy sources will also be addressed by exhibits and lectures.

The trade show features several ag businesses and agencies to provide products and guidance to those entering a new venture or those already established and are looking for information on expansion or changes to their operations.

The expo will be providing various avenues to visit. One can learn about the characteristics and care of different species at one location; move on to the next to learn about the housing, fencing, and manure management requirements; attend a lecture on how to utilize products produced such as cheese or soap; and then attend a session on marketing of your animals and/or products.

The trade show features exhibitors from ag agencies, commodity and breed associations, lending institutions, fencing, ag builders, forestry supply companies, feed and animal health care companies, rural living product suppliers, seed companies, small farm equipment manufacturers, small farm owners, educational livestock exhibits, and many others.

The steering committee of the Small Farm Expo includes the Warren County, New Jersey Economic Development and Tourism Department, Pond Hollow Farm, the Northeast Jersey Folklife project, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Monroe County Conservation District, Pocono Northeast RC & D, Mid-Atlantic Farm Credit, and the New Jersey Department of Agriculture.

Admission, including access to all classes, demonstrations, workshops, and exhibits, is $10 per adult per day. A two-day pass is available for $15. Children are free. A variety of food vendors will be on site.

More information can be obtained on the Web at www.smallfarmexpo.org or by calling the Northampton County Extension Office at (610) 746-1970.

Schweiker Requests Federal Drought Declaration

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Mark Schweiker has requested USDA to issue a Natural Disaster Declaration for 54 Pennsylvania counties that are experiencing significant crop loss because of a prolonged drought.

"Pennsylvania's farm families are suffering from disastrous growing conditions that will cause reduced yields and higher operating costs, placing greater economic stress on their economic enterprise," said Schweiker. "A federal declaration will help the state's 50,000 farm families cope with the ravages of this drought."

Pennsylvania counties eligible for assistance, realizing at least a 30 percent loss for a single crop, were included in the drought declaration request. If granted, farmers will be eligible for USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) low-interest loans for crop damage and losses from the drought.

Many Pennsylvania counties have been under a drought warning or drought emergency since early in 2002. This has been caused by a lack of adequate rainfall during the previous 12 months. For many producers, this is the second severe drought in four years.

"Where the drought has touched down, it has parched the earth, withered the crops, and in many cases has diminished the chance for meaningful production this season. Pennsylvania has received some rainfall in recent days, but many fields will not recover," said Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes.

"Some regions have been spared but many others are trapped in the searing jaws of nature's drought. Fortunately, our efforts to reform crop insurance is providing many farmers with more risk management opportunity and economic protection than ever before."

The request for a disaster declaration is authorized when it is determined that farmers have suffered severe physical and production losses as a result of natural disaster. Adverse weather conditions qualify as a natural disaster. Once a county has been designated a Natural Disaster Area, any county contiguous to the designated county is also eligible to receive financial assistance. To be eligible for federal disaster assistance, farmers must have realized at least a 30 percent loss for a single crop.

All counties have submitted USDA potential natural disaster damage assessment reports. Crop loss has been quantified by FSA to be a 46 percent on a statewide basis. Crop loss has been quantified by FSA to be 46 percent on a statewide basis. Pennsylvania farmers have crop insurance with more than one million acres insured, because of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) and its continuing efforts to bring about reforms in the country's crop insurance program.

PDA, the Risk Management Agency, and insurance providers have been working to make crop insurance more reflective of Pennsylvania's diverse agriculture.

Administration Announces Federal Assistance For Grape Growers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes announced that the USDA has issued a disaster declaration for Erie, Crawford, and Warren counties in northwest Pennsylvania in the wake of grape crop losses earlier this year because of frost and freezes.

On June 10, Schweiker requested USDA Secretary Ann Veneman to make Farm Service Agency (FSA) emergency loans available to eligible farmers for crop losses in that area occurring because of severe frost and freeze conditions in May. With Erie County being named a primary disaster area, the declaration also makes the contiguous counties of Crawford and Warren counties eligible for assistance.

The grape crop losses are expected to be in excess of 60 percent of the normal yield and more than $10 million.

Farmers may contact their local FSA office for information on eligibility requirements and application procedures. Additional information is available online at www.fas.usda.gov/pas/disaster/assistance.htm.

Farmers Union Applauds USDA's Updated Yield Criteria

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Farmers Union commended U.S. Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently for clarifying the types of information producers may use to update farm yields under farm payment programs.

"From producer comments we have received, there has been a high level of anxiety that USDA was attempting to establish the rules for production evidence in such a way that many farmers would have been unable to fully utilize the yield update provisions of the farm bill," said NFU President Dave Frederickson.

According to Veneman's statement, producers seeking to update yields may verify production by using weight tickets, loan deficiency payment (LDP) data, crop insurance appraisals, sale records, or previous LDPs. If a producer is unable to provide this information, Veneman said the Farm Service Agency could assign an updated yield based on yields from three similar farms or 75 percent of the county average yield.

"We appreciate Secretary Veneman's clarifications that will give more producers a fair opportunity to fully participate in the farm bill programs," Frederickson said.

ty, not only took care of her two small children but also tried to accommodate the rescue workers as much as possible with food and beverages and restrooms.

"It was an experience I'll never forget," remarked Lori, who has been married to Bill for the past eight years. The two met while Lori was working at Agway as a dairy nutritionist. Bill, a 1986 Penn State graduate, came in one day to Agway and learned that Lori was also a Penn State graduate.

The couple bought Dormel Farms, named after Bill's parents Dorcas and Melvin Arnold, from his parents in a purchase agreement, while the elder Arnolds retired from farming and built another home on the property. They have a New Zealand style swing-over parlor and use a rotational, seasonal management intensive grazing program. They own 135 acres and rent 300 acres.

The farm itself, located six miles north of Somerset, is listed on the Pennsylvania Historic Registry for historic homes. Absalom Casebeer was the earliest settler known to the homestead, building his impressive two-story brick home in 1790.

John N. Casebeer, one of Absalom's eight children, inherited the farm. He and his wife Mary built the barn in 1837 and donated land for the construction of the Casebeer Lutheran Church in 1845. The nearby Christ Casebeer Lutheran Church was where the ceremony was held for the miners after their safe return.

Subsequent owners of the farm included A.J. Casebeer, who owned the farm from 1876-1883; Elias G. Bittner, from 1883 to 1906; and Elias' daughter and son-in-law Simon Baker acquired the farm in 1906. Clark Miller, a family relative, then purchased the farm for about 25 years before it was sold to the Moore family for a short time. Melvin and Dorcas Arnold, along with Melvin's father Albert, purchased the farm in April 1963.

Melvin and Dorcas, who have been retired from farming for a few years, have been quite active recently with the entourage of tourists who stop by the farm every day to see where the miners were pulled to safety and talk to the Arnolds about their experience. The Arnolds have dedicated one of their garage buildings to receiving tourists. According to Bill, about 150 people stop daily. On weekends, that number usually goes up to about 1,500 tourists. The Arnolds charge a minimum tour fee for their time.

Each of the miners was paid by Disney for their rights to make a television movie of the story. The Arnolds are negotiating with Disney about using their farm as the location.

Many times, those who stop by the Flight 93 temporary memorial in Shanksville stop by the mine rescue site, too. The mine rescue was the second cause for international media attention in Somerset County within one year. Last Sept. 11, one of four airplanes crashed into an abandoned field, ironically a former mining site, near Shanksville after terrorists struck America in an unforgettable attack.

"People ask me, 'how do you feel now that your farm is a part of history?' and I tell them 'this farm has always been a part of history.' We are just fortunate enough to be the caretakers during this phase of that history," said Bill. "There has been a high cost of human life on this soil in Somerset County when Flight 93 went down with Americans aboard. They sacrificed their lives for us. This time the outcome was different and we in Somerset County and as Americans should be thankful."

The farm is located six miles north of Somerset on Rt. 601/985 to Haupt Road.

Bill Arnold of Lincoln Township, about six miles north of Somerset near Sipesville, stands by the spot where nine miners were pulled to safety after 77 hours of being trapped in a mine underneath the farm. Bill and his family give tours of the site to a continuous flow of tourists everyday.

MANAGING STALK ROT AND CORN SILAGE QUALITY Del Voight Regional Agronomic Agent Penn State

Driving around the region, I pass many fields that are severely drought-stricken, and taller corn is beginning to lodge.

There are a host of reasons why corn lodges and, depending on the reason, may impact not only the quality but the health of the crop, and mycotoxins in rations may result.

Many dairy farms experience the call from the nutritionist that mycotoxin levels are high. What you need to do is get around the infected material in the silo so you have access to clean silage elsewhere in the silo. Few track-back the infected crop to where it originated in the field. In many cases it can be traced to a severely infected stalk or ear rot section of a field.

This is not enough, however. The area in the field needs to be identified and a plan must be put into place and followed up on. The first step in successful management of stalk rot is to recognize that it is manageable. Second, growers need to plan in winter to combat stalk rot. Finally, growers need to follow the plan of attack.

Stalks may lodge because of insect damage, genetics of the hybrid, and more likely disease brought on by many factors of importance, such as soil potassium levels. A trained eye will determine which is responsible. In all cases where stalks lodge and problems occur, a soil test from the area in question, compared with an area that shows no signs, may prove fruitful in diagnosis.

If growers have problems in diagnosis, coordinate a visit with an extension agent or one of the many certified crop advisers. This is usually done after the fact and is useless for this year's crop but will allow you to change things for next year. Let's plan the attack now.

The first attack will be hybrid selection. An old extension proverb is to never plant the same hybrid in the same field next year. Sound simple? Follow it. I have been in many fields where this simple message is ignored and disaster occurred in the field.

Second, choose hybrids that not only maintain yield but have high resistance to stalk rot. I am looking at a seed catalog now and can pick three for my farm that have very high resistance to stalk rot pathogens. At winter meetings, ask the dealers for their top picks for stalk rot resistance (anthracnose is the major one rated) in mind.

One final note: some cooperative research I am involved in suggests Bt corn can reduce the incidence of disease invasion through keeping European corn borer from eating into the stalk. Be sure that is in the balance of your hybrid decision.

With soil test in hand, get to the plant food dealer and correct any deficiencies in nutrients, putting the highest priority on potassium. I have several personal experiences where very low potassium levels caused stalk rot in the field and this was compared to areas of the field with no stalk rot with adequate potassium. It is also well documented in the literature.

Third, avoid the "sins" of soil management. If the soil is wet, stay off it, especially with the planter! It is easy for me to say that, and I am aware of the farmer's plight. But when soils are wet, sidewall compaction at planting can cause deficiencies in nutrients and eventually stress the plant and allow it to become susceptible to stalk rot pathogens as well as many other problems.

If you do decide to "sin," be sure your planter is retrofitted with finger-type closing wheels to break up the smearing action of the double disc openers. It makes no sense to correct a potassium deficiency and then not allow the roots to absorb it because of compaction. (I could talk more about compaction at a later date, because we are finding some interesting results on dairy farms.)

Plant early to allow the plants time to generate roots that will harvest deep water zones. Avoid drought stress and subsequent invasion by stalk rot pathogens. This year is a great example of that. In many cases, early planted corn is lower yielding this year but at least will yield. Mid- and late-planted corn are hardest hit by the drought. In most cases, a call to the local extension agent will provide you with research-based parameters of what is early mid- and late-season for your area. Then strive to have 90 percent of corn planted on the early side of the ideal planting date.

Now that you have properly selected a hybrid, planted the hybrid early, corrected potassium deficiencies (within fields), and alleviated compaction, it's time to begin harvesting disease-free corn silage that will avoid that call from the nutritionist.

Trust Kicks Off Harvest Appeal

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust officials will celebrate an important milestone when they officially kick off their annual funding campaign, Harvest Appeal 2002, at a reception to honor J. Freeland Chryst, honorary campaign chair.

In late August, the Trust helped Cliff and Grace Stirba of Paradise Township preserve their 67-acre farm — the 150th farm that Lancaster Farmland Trust has preserved since 1988.

A reception is scheduled Tuesday, Sept. 10, from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at the historic Lancaster Trust Building lobby on North Market Street.

The Trust preserved a record number of farms in 2001, and interest from farmers remains high. "The timing of this campaign couldn't be better, because it is essential that we reach our goal of $200,000 by year's end so that we can provide assistance to a growing number of farm families who want to preserve their land," said Ted Bowers, Trust board vice chair. Funds raised during the campaign cover operating costs for the organization. Bowers said, "Jay Chryst's reputation in local business and philanthropic circles will have a tremendous impact on our ability to help more farm families preserve their land."

J. Freeland Chryst is the chairman and founder of the Jay Group, a full service marketing support and sales promotion company serving Fortune 1000 companies around the world. The company recently opened their fifth local plant and employs more than 300. The Jay Group will be honored on Sept. 27 at Central Penn Business Journal's Top 50 Fastest Growing Companies awards breakfast and ceremony in Harrisburg.

Chryst is native to Lancaster County and has demonstrated a commitment to the community through service to numerous local nonprofit organizations. From 1993 to 1998, he chaired Millersville University's highly successful $27 million capital campaign. In a recent interview, Chryst noted that the "preservation of Lancaster County's farmland extends the quality of all our lives."

Custom Cattle Feeding Workshop Upcoming

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The Blueprint for Success Program will hold its first Custom Feeding workshop of the fall season Sept. 16. The workshop will be conducted at the Lancaster County Extension office at 7 p.m.

The purpose of this workshop is to assist cattle feeders who may be interested in custom feeding. The workshop will provide information and resources that enable producers to make decisions in their own feeding operations. Topics for the September workshop include:

- Making the most of limited supplies in a drought stressed year.
- Sample contracts and close-outs.
- Promotion and advertisement of your custom feeding operation.

Additional workshops will be conducted in October and November with more details to follow. For more information on the September workshop, or future workshops, please contact Scott Wright at the Pennsylvania Beef Council office at (717) 939-7000.

PMMB Announces Fluid Milk Price For August

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for August class I milk (beverage) as an average of $14.53 in the west-wealth. These prices include the over-order premium of $1.65 per one hundred pounds of milk.

Farmers, whose milk production is pooled under a federal order, will receive a marketwide blend price based upon the value of all classes of milk. However, the blend price received will vary as the component composition of a farmer's milk differs from the established benchmarks.

Virginia Correspondent
HARRISONBURG, Va. — Some 227 market lambs, 92 market steers and 134 market swine were sold at the Rockingham County Fair on Friday, Aug. 16.

Laura Sponaugle's supreme grand champion lamb weighing 130 pounds was purchased by Cargill Turkey Products at a hefty $10.25 per pound, or $1,332.50, for the 16-year old from Grottoes. Cargill Turkey Products was represented by Bill Griffin and Brett Seal.

Ashley Good's reserve lamb weighing 135 pounds, was purchased by Arnel Investments and Goods Towing for $6.20 per pound, or $837. Good, of Mount Clinton, is 16 and a junior at the Turner-Ashby High School.

In lamb pairs, Laura Sponaugle, Grottoes, also owned the supreme grand champion pair that weighed in at 260 pounds. The pair was purchased at 3.25 per pound, or $845, by the Augusta Coop Farm Bureau.

Jeffrey Long's supreme reserve champion lamb pair, weighing 245 pounds, was purchased by Old Dominion Forestry for 3.50 per pound, or $857.50.

Long is of Keezletown.

The total weight of market lambs amounted to 26,200 pounds and officials tallied the average weight at 115 pounds. The average price for lambs was $2.65 per pound.

Beam Brothers, represented by Gerald Beam, took the bidding for Alissa Michael's 1,340 pound supreme grand champion steer to $2.50 and paid the 14-year Port Republic girl, a grand sum of $3,350 for the Angus crossbred animal.

Roxxon Corporation purchased the supreme reserve grand champion steer owned by Ashley Good of Mount Clinton, at $1.40 per pound, or $1,694.

It weighed 1,210-pounds.

Some 92 head of market steers crossed the auction block with a combined total weight of 116,165 pounds. The steers average weight was figured at 1,263 pounds and the average overall price was just slightly less than $1. In the sale booklet they were graded either as Choice or Select.

Evers Restaurant, represented by Rudolph Evers, purchased Dezirae Allman's 260-pound supreme grand champion swine for $3.25 per pound, or $845. The Dayton girl is 14 years old.

The supreme reserve champion swine owned by Laura Sponaugle, Grottoes, was purchased by Tyrone Scott for $1.75, or $455. It weighed 260-pounds.

In swine pairs Caity Armentrout's 495 pound supreme grand champion pair was purchased at $1.50 per pound, or $742.50, by White Tire.

Armentrout, of Mount Crawford, is 12.

The 480 pound supreme reserve champion swine pair owned by Laura Sponaugle, Grottoes, was purchased by First Bank and Trust at $1 per pound, or $480.

The total weight of some 134 swine was 32,805 pounds, with an average weight of 245 pounds. The price per pound averaged $1.58 for swine.

Some 90 hogs were graded No. 1 and 44 were graded No. 2.

Several youths said they had decided already to reinvest their money for other market animals to show in 2003. Laura Sponaugle, however, indicated that the extra financial resources at her disposal will be disbursed in several ways in the coming year.

"I made a good amount of money on my lambs and pigs," the teenager said. "This is the first year to put some in a college fund," she said, adding that, as a licensed driver, the additional funds will allow her, rather than her parents, to be largely responsible for personal expenses — like putting gasoline in the car — besides paying for the market animals she will show in 2003.

Even at age 12, Caity Armentrout is also cognizant of the future.

Her dual goal, she said, is to save for both college and the car she someday wants to own.

Auctioneers for the sale were John Bowman, Greg Garber, Robbie Reeves, Tom Weaver and Charlie Whetzel.

A CALL TO VOLUNTEERISM

As the Sept. 11 anniversary of the tragic events in our country approaches, it's time to reflect over the past year. While it's easy to point out all that is wrong with our society, this is a time to each ask ourselves what we can do to improve our society.

One of the many things that helps to make America great is our strong sense of volunteerism. President Bush encouraged Americans to volunteer during his State of the Union address last January to give at least two years, or 4,000 hours over their lives, to serving others.

There is a vast amount of volunteer opportunities available. President Bush created the USA Freedom Corps which offers a Website, www.usafreedomcorps.gov, which can help you determine volunteer needs in your own community based on specific areas of service. Why not volunteer in an area that you may have a special interest or concern? If your area of interest happens to be the agricultural arena, I offer some options to consider.

There are a number of organizations to volunteer with in the field of agriculture. The ones mentioned in this article are just a few; there are still many others to consider. Step one in volunteering is determining your area of interest in agriculture. This might include youth development, farmland preservation, local government, international service, or business and industry service.

If you have an interest in volunteering with our youth, a great place to start is with the 4-H program. Sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension for youth ages 8 to 18, 4-H relies on leaders to help youth learn to appreciate the value and dignity of work, acquire knowledge and skills, cooperate with others, and many other valuable traits. Call your county's Penn State extension office to find out how you can become a 4-H leader. In Lancaster County, you can reach the 4-H office by calling (717) 394-6851.

If helping to preserve farmland is your focus, consider volunteering with a farmland preservation organization. In Lancaster County, the Lancaster Farmland Trust works on preserving Lancaster's farmland. The organization relies on volunteers to help accomplish their mission in different ways, such as serving on committees, assisting at events, or helping to send out letters to its members. To learn more about the Lancaster Farmland Trust, visit their Website at www.savelancasterfarms.org or call (717) 293-0707.

If you would like to help make a difference in your local township, consider attending your monthly municipal board of supervisors meetings. To offer to serve on a board or committee, it is advised to call your township manager or secretary. If you would consider running for office in your township, you should contact your municipal political committee. Getting involved in your local township is a critical area, especially for agriculture, as municipalities control a lot of the future planning and zoning for your community.

If you would like to share your knowledge or skills with struggling farmers in developing countries, there are several places to look. There are many faith-based mission groups that work overseas which are searching for people that could help with agricultural development. Penn State also offers information on several international programs offering volunteer opportunities on its Website, www.cas.psu.edu/docs/international.

If you have interest in getting involved in your local business community as a volunteer, a great place to start is with your county's chamber of commerce. Chambers offer many opportunities to serve on councils or committees focusing on key business issues. In Lancaster County, The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry has an active Agriculture Committee. This talented group of leaders in agriculture is very involved on a variety of topics and events in the agriculture industry. For more information on The Lancaster Chamber, visit its Website, www.lancasterchamber.com or call (717) 397-3531.

Time is a limited resource, but volunteering enhances your life and the lives of others. Carefully determine what your key areas of interest are and select the volunteer opportunity that best meets those needs. Help make a difference for tomorrow — volunteer today.

Register today for The Lancaster Chamber's 26th Annual Agriculture Industry Banquet on Nov. 25. This event is Pennsylvania's largest Chamber banquet honoring the agriculture industry. For sponsorship and registration information, visit www.lancasterchamber.com. For more information on volunteerism or the Agriculture Industry Banquet, contact Brent Landis at (717) 397-3531 or e-mail blandis@lcci.com.

Apples Make the Grade

EAST LANSING, Mich. — A great-looking apple is no guarantee of great taste. Internal defects are difficult if not impossible to detect. USDA inspectors sample apples to gauge taste and other quality factors.

But if they so much as pick up an apple, it has to be discarded. And there are grading tests done on sample apples when they are first bought from growers, before the fruit ever reaches the packing line. But, again, all those tests require destroying (or eating) the apple which means the ones tested are guaranteed to be the ones we never get to eat.

So Renfu Lu, an ARS agricultural engineer working in Michigan, the third-largest U.S. apple-producing state, is using remote sensing techniques borrowed from NASA and the military to do an automatic, hands-off sampling of every single apple before it gets to your hands or mouth.

Apple packinghouses currently rely on digital camera imagery to sort apples by surface appearance only, flagging those that are visibly defective or the wrong size or color.

"That system is literally skin-deep," Lu says. "It can't detect bruises beneath the skin."

Lu proposes looking deeper with a system that uses the latest imaging spectroscopy techniques. These combine the digital camera's conventional two-dimensional imaging with spectroscopy to analyze various wavelengths of reflected light. This method can discern subtleties in an object's features whether it's terrain, camouflaged Army tanks, or apples.

Lu's system would bounce light off apples one at a time as they pass by on processing lines. The returning light would be detected by an imaging spectrometer to create a spectral image of the apple on a computer screen. Specially designed software would allow the computer to sort the apples by internal quality attributes required for various grades.

Lu's tests have shown that his system can detect bruises deep within the apple's flesh. But first he is focusing on the top two things that make a great-tasting apple — sugar content and firmness. Lu developed mathematical equations that relate sugar content to the amount of light absorbed by an apple and firmness to the amount of light bounced off the apple. He hopes to expand the system to detect acid content.

Industry studies have shown there to be different demands for various types of apples, Lu says. "Oldsters tend to prefer softer, sweeter apples, while youngsters like them hard and sour," he says. "With a taste- and firmness-sorting system, each apple gets to the right person."

Lu is confident that his work with apples and cherries will be easy to adapt to oranges, peaches, or pears.

New Farmers, New Generation

Marion Bowlan

Farm Link

TRACKING YOUR PROGRESS

Success begins in your mind. Before you can convince others that they should buy your farm's products or services, first you need to totally believe in them. And, you need to translate that belief into an action plan for your farm.

Last time we discussed the need to have a clear vision of both your personal mission in life and your farm's mission. You did your homework and put down on paper a vision so clear, so grounded, and so full of enthusiasm, that it's alive! Your positive energy is contagious. You and your family derive enough energy from this spirit that you feel as though you have what you need to propel you through both the good times and the bad.

But no successful person or business is an overnight sensation. Success does not occur haphazardly, it's the result of creating and continually working and revising a dynamic plan for your farm business. This vision you have created needs to be translated into goals. A goal could be described as a dream with a deadline. Your goals are targets or desired outcomes for your farm. They relate it to functions of your farm business rather than individuals. Each goal needs to be measurable and compatible with your personal and farm mission; for example, I will increase my volume of strawberry sales by 30 percent this year.

A goal can have several objectives. The objectives are specific strategies on how you are going to achieve those goals. Who is going to do it, when are they going to do it, and how are you going to get there? Objectives are always measurable and assigned to someone within your business. Some objectives for the above goal are: I will soil test my ground to determine the best soils for strawberry production. I will consult with extension or an agronomist on crop appropriateness, weed and disease problems in my area. I will investigate at least two to three additional market outlets for my strawberries. And so on.

After you establish your goals and objectives, you will want to know how does your farm compare with similar farms, or with a standard. In other words, what are the benchmarks, or proven ways of assessing your farm's performance? You need to look at your goals and determine what you were able to deliver. Did you meet the goal of improving strawberry sales by 30 percent this year? If not, why not? How does your farm stack up to other local farm production and marketing capabilities? Which areas need improvement, which areas are your strengths? What information or talent do you need to bring in to improve these abilities? Can you hire out the jobs that are weaknesses? What is the cost and potential return?

To grow your farm business, excellence is almost always a prerequisite. You are sending the message that you're going to be the best in all areas of your business. You have no room for lag-guards. But, be sure that your spouse and family share the same dream. To increase your efficiency, do take time to spend with your family. You can't do it alone.

To learn more about farm businesses who are striving for excellence and tracking their progress, plan to attend Pennsylvania Farm Link's Direct and Roadside Marketing Workshop Oct. 10 in New Cumberland and/or Getting Started in Aquaculture on Oct. 16 in Effort. Please call (717) 664-7077 to register for these free events or to inquire about other resources available through Pennsylvania Farm Link.

Next time: understanding succession planning.

Veal 101

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The sixth annual Veal 101 seminar will be conducted Oct. 20-22. It will be hosted by the Pennsylvania Beef Council and the Pennsylvania State University.

Veal 101 is open to anyone involved in the production to marketing of veal. The program teaches participants production practices, industry trends, consumer concerns, and includes hands-on fabrication of a carcass. The seminar begins with a tour of a veal farm on Oct. 20. The remainder will be conducted at the Penn State Meats Lab.

Registration for Veal 101 closed Sept. 6, and spaces are limited to the first 24 participants. The cost of the seminar is $300. Contact Michelle Cornman at the PA Beef Council office at (717) 939-7000.

New Ways With Chicken

CHEESY CHICKEN POT PIE

- 1½ cups chicken stock
- 1 cup cooked, shredded chicken meat
- ¼ cup green peas
- ¼ cup diced celery
- ¼ cup diced carrots
- 1½ cups shredded Cheddar cheese
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 recipe pastry for a nine-inch double crust pie

In a medium saucepan combine the stock, chicken, peas, celery and carrots. Bring to a boil.

Mix cornstarch with milk and stir into stock mixture. Cook, stirring constantly for five minutes. Remove from heat and let cool for one hour.

Preheat oven to 325 degrees.

Stir cheese into filling mixture and pour into a nine-inch pie crust. Top with second crust, seal edges and cut slits in top crust. Place on a cookie sheet and bake for 35 to 40 minutes or until top crust is golden brown.

CALIFORNIA CHICKEN SALAD

- 3 cups pre-cooked chicken breast meat, diced fine
- 2 cups cherry tomatoes, halved
- 3 scallions, chopped
- ¼ cup horseradish
- ½ cup bacon sour cream dip
- two avocados, peeled, pitted and sliced

In medium bowl, stir together chicken, cherry tomatoes, scallions, horseradish and sour cream dip. Arrange avocado slices on four salad plates. Spoon chicken salad over avocado and serve.

ALICE CHICKEN

- 4 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves
- 5 fluid ounces Worcestershire sauce
- 8 slices bacon
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 8 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 8-ounce package Monterey Jack cheese, shredded
- 16-ounce container honey mustard salad dressing

Place chicken in a glass dish or bowl; poke with a fork several times, then pour Worcestershire sauce in and turn to coat. Cover dish or bowl and refrigerate for about one hour.

Place bacon in a large, deep skillet. Cook over medium high heat until evenly brown. Drain, and set aside.

Heat butter in a small skillet over medium heat. Add mushrooms, and saute for about 10 minutes, or until soft; set aside.

Preheat oven to broil.

Remove chicken from marinade (discard any remaining liquid), and broil for about 5 minutes each side. When chicken is almost finished, top each breast with two slices bacon, then cheese. Continue to broil until cheese has melted, then remove from oven. Serve with mushrooms and salad dressing for topping.

BACON MUSHROOM CHICKEN

- 2 tablespoons butter, melted
- 2 bone-in chicken breast halves
- 1 teaspoon seasoning salt
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 2 thick slices bacon
- ½ cup mushrooms, halved
- ¼ cup heavy cream

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Pour melted butter into a 9x13 inch baking dish. Add chicken, skin side down; sprinkle with seasoning salt and garlic. Turn chicken over, season, and lay bacon strips on top. Sprinkle with mushrooms.

Bake in preheated oven for 45 minutes to 60 minutes, or until chicken is no longer pink and juices run clear.

Remove chicken, bacon and mushrooms to a platter and keep warm. Pour juices from baking dish into a small saucepan and whisk together with cream over low heat until thickened.

Pour sauce over chicken and serve warm. Serve with rice or buttered noodles. Instead of using heavy cream in the recipe, use one teaspoon flour mixed with two teaspoons water.

CHICKEN AND HAM CASSEROLE

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 1 cup milk
- ½ cup cooked, cubed chicken breast meat
- ½ cup cooked and cubed ham
- ½ cup cooked wide egg noodles
- ¼ cup chopped celery
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper

- 3 ounces shredded Cheddar cheese

- 1 teaspoon paprika

Preheat oven to 400 degrees.

Melt butter in a large saucepan over low heat. Stir in the flour and heat until bubbly. Slowly add the milk, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and smooth.

Remove from heat and stir in the chicken, ham, noodles, celery, salt and ground black pepper. Transfer this mixture to a 1½ quart casserole dish.

Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Remove from oven, sprinkle with the cheese and top with paprika, as desired. Return to oven and bake for 5 to 10 minutes, or until cheese is bubbly.

BACON CHICKEN

- 6 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves
- 6 slices bacon
- 10.75 ounce can condensed cream of celery soup (or any other creamed soup)
- ¼ cup milk

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Wrap each chicken breast in one piece of bacon.

Place the chicken breasts in a 9x13 inch baking dish. Mix the soup and milk and pour mixture over the chicken breasts. Cover dish with foil.

Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes, or until chicken is cooked through and juices run clear. Remove foil for the last 15 minutes of baking, to brown the bacon.

APRICOT CHICKEN

- 6 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves
- 1 ½ (1 ounce) packages dry onion soup mix
- 1 (10 fluid ounce) bottle Russian-style salad dressing
- 1 cup apricot preserves

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Place the chicken pieces in a four-quart casserole dish. Mix the soup mix, dressing and jam together, and pour over the chicken.

Cover dish and bake for one hour in preheated oven.

CHICKEN DELICIOUS

- 10 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves
- 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
- salt and pepper to taste
- ¼ teaspoon celery salt
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 10.75-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 10.75-ounce can condensed cream of celery soup
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Rinse the chicken breasts and pat dry. Season with the lemon juice, salt, pepper, celery salt and paprika to taste. Place in a slow cooker.

In a medium size bowl mix the mushroom and celery soups with the sherry/wine. Pour mixture over the chicken breasts and sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese.

Cook on low setting for 8 to 10 hours, or on high setting for four to five hours.

CHICKEN PESTO PIZZA

- 10-ounce package Italian flavored, fully cooked, carved chicken breasts, or any other pre-cooked chicken breast, chopped
- 12-inch pre-baked pizza crust
- 1 jar prepared pesto sauce
- 6-ounce jar marinated artichoke hearts, drained and chopped
- ½ cup fontina cheese, grated

Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Spread pizza crust with chopped chicken, artichoke hearts and grated cheese.

Place in preheated oven on baking sheet and cook 8-10 minutes, until cheese begins to brown. Makes a 12-inch pizza.

Tips For Handling Chicken

- Refrigerate raw chicken promptly. Packaged fresh chicken may be refrigerated in original wrappings in the coldest part of the refrigerator.

- Freeze uncooked chicken if it is not to be used within two days. If properly packaged, frozen chicken will maintain top quality in a home freezer for up to one year.

- Thaw chicken in the refrigerator or in cold water. It takes about 24 hours to thaw a four-pound chicken in the refrigerator. Cut-up parts take three to nine hours.

- To thaw in cold water, place chicken in its original wrap or water-tight plastic bag in cold water. Change water often. It takes about two hours to thaw a whole chicken.

- If chicken is stuffed, remove stuffing to a separate container before refrigerating.

- When barbecuing chicken outdoors, keep refrigerated until ready to cook. Do not place cooked chicken on same plate used to transport raw chicken to grill.

- If using a meat thermometer, the internal temperature should reach 180 degrees for whole chicken, 170 degrees for bone-in parts and 160 degrees for boneless parts.

- Never leave cooked chicken at room temperature for more than two hours. If not eaten immediately, cooked chicken should be kept either hot or refrigerated.

- Marinade in which raw chicken has been soaking should never be used on cooked chicken.

- Cooked, cut-up chicken is at its best refrigerated for no longer than two days — whole cooked chicken, an additional day.

If leftovers are to be reheated, cover to retain moisture and to ensure that chicken is heated all the way through.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards) Joyce Bupp

It was a sweet fragrance, yet subtle.

And the source was unknown. But something in the little meadow woodlot, perhaps a shrub or patch of wildflowers, was sending a wonderful scent through the early evening air. Maybe it had been there before, but was suddenly enhanced by the refreshing and long-absent scent of rain.

Rain. Real rain.

Two days worth of slow, soaking moisture had accumulated in the rain gauge on the barn fence, tallying some three inches received within a week. That as much as our crops have gotten all summer. While three inches is not even close to recharging the severe depletion of our area's underground supplies, the soaking rain brought a tremendous boost to soil surfaces and, hopefully, a late cutting of alfalfa hay.

To say nothing of the improved mental outlook bestowed by steady rain after weeks of drought.

So, despite the continued slow drizzle, Derra Dog and I headed for the meadow, to bask in our newly-washed world, glistening with moisture and comfortably cool enough to warrant a sweat-shirt.

And the outside smelled soooo good.

Fresh mown hay lay in neat rows across acres of hillside, sparse growth The Farmer had mowed down before the unexpected rain. His intent — and hopes — were that timely moisture would come to boost the fields for one last, decent, cutting of alfalfa. The hay scent, enhanced by the washing it had received, hung heavy in the evening air.

A musky aroma — ahh, damp woodlot soil, reminiscent of the mountains — added to the evening's blended perfume. Topping it off was that elusive floral sweetness, source still a mystery.

Visual evidence of the moisture enhanced the attraction of our freshly-rinsed world. Mud puddles dotted the field road, a tempting attraction to jump into with both feet, just to watch the splash. Not wanting to stroll on in squishy sneakers, I zigzagged through the myriad of miniponds of the dirt road, trying not to slip on the mud between them.

Though a bit murky, the small stream that splits the meadow was running higher than it had in months, gurgling over the rocky bottom as it vanished between overhangs of lush growth. Tall, leggy wildflower clumps leaned over the banks under the weight of their drop-laden leaves. Birds flitted in and out of the thick, briary growth that shades much of the streambanks, haven for wildlife through all seasons.

Derra barely lifted her nose above the grass, totally immersed in her investigation of the myriad of smells along this path we had not walked for weeks. Evenings along the meadow creek during the sort of brutal heat we gasped through for endless weeks are less than pleasurable. Too many bugs.

Not to mention the large, temperamental bull then pastured with the heifers, a character who took his job as protector of his harem very seriously, to the point that he has since been sent off on his final career change.

Gone was the persistent, clinging dust that had coated every leaf, every limb, every stone along this walk, all cleansed and shining with freshness and moisture following hours of steady rain. Heading back toward the house, we took the standard summer evening path along the banks of the ponds. Droplets of water artistically dotted the flat, round leaves of the waterlilies, their thick growth providing cover and safe haven for a half-dozen frogs that skittered away, chirping, at our approach.

From the open vantage point of the pond banks, the landscape changes wrought by few inches of rain were dramatic. In the fading light of a drizzly evening, the world was beginning to look lush, alive...green.

Grass was pushing tiny new spikes up from the faded clumps. Much of the sparse, mowed alfalfa had already disappeared into the stubble, the bare stems already sending out tiny clusters of new leaves. Even the zinnias in the border were responding with new spikes of pink flower buds.

Though the calendar page turned to September, outside it looked more like spring after a winter of drabness. Rejuvenated by the cooler temperatures and renewed growth, I mowed the lawn.

And planted a row of peas.

It doesn't take much rain to get a celebration going here.

Take A Closer Look at Grandparenting

Sunday, September 8, is Grandparents Day in America. A 1998 American Association of Retired Persons survey tells us that 31 percent of adults, or 60 million Americans, are grandparents.

Another study tells us that the relationship to a grandparent is second only to the parent relationship. While not all of us are grandparents, everyone has been a grandchild. As we celebrate this special day in our country, let's take a closer look at grandparent roles and relationships.

Experiences we had with our grandparents while growing up can influence how we grandparent. What roles did your grandparents play in their relationship to you? My maternal grandparents lived next door to us, so there were plenty of opportunities for grandparent involvement in our daily lives.

It was Grandpa who quickly pulled that baby tooth that was hanging by a couple threads. Grandma taught us geography by sharing her National Geographic magazines and viewmaster reels. They passed on their religion, hard work ethics and morals to us.

We never wanted Grandma or Grandpa to find out when we got in trouble for doing something we knew was wrong! Although the two-hour drive seemed long to us when we were young children, we also looked forward to visits with our paternal grandparents and kept in touch with them.

Grandpa Crago played the fiddle and Grandma was always laughing! They entertained us with family stories and treats.

If you are a parent, the relationship between your children and your parents can also influence how you grandparent. My children developed strong bonds with their grandparents that continue to exist in their busy adult lives in spite of distance.

Grammy would take them out for ice cream when they stayed overnight. At the campground, they would sit around a campfire and tell stories with Pop and Gram. One child won a blue ribbon at the county fair for the strawberries Pop taught him how to grow. Gram always had time to listen when a grandchild had a problem to solve.

As children grew and times changed, the roles and activities varied, but there remained one common theme — one-on-one time together with undivided attention.

Arthur Kornhaber, M.D., founder and president of the Foundation for Grandparenting and a leading authority on the grandparent and grandchild relationship, says these are the essential ingredients of a close grandparent-grandchild bond.

How can grandparents make the most of the grandparent and grandchild relationship? Stephen Covey, author of the book, "The Seven Habits of Highly Effective Families," suggests writing a mission statement for grandparents.

Think about what roles you want to and are able to play to promote the growth and happiness of your grandchildren.

What can you do as a grandparent that will also support your children in their role as parents?

Ask yourself what obstacles, such as lack of time, distance, differing family forms and generations, personality differences and divorce, are getting in the way of being the best grandparent possible.

Tell your children what roles you want to play. When issues arise, work with family members to find a solution.

Ask your children and grandchildren for feedback about how you are doing in your grandparenting role.

According to Kornhaber, "Grandparenting is about growing, changing, and learning. You can set a wonderful example for your children and grandchildren by doing all three."

Beef Industry Joins With Quizno's To Introduce Bistro Beef Sub

DENVER, Colo. — Sandwich shops are one of the fastest growing segments of foodservice, and the beef industry is taking advantage of this growth to sell more beef. Through a new checkoff-funded promotion program with Quizno's restaurants, the fastest-growing sandwich chain, beef producers will help Quizno's launch the Bistro Beef Sub this September.

About 1,750 Quizno's sub locations will feature the Bistro Beef Sub from September 16 to October 27. During that time the sub will be promoted via radio and TV spots in Quizno's key markets. The Beef Check logo will appear on all merchandising materials and in the TV spots.

Quizno's Bistro Beef sub features sliced roast beef, herbed mayo, a blend of Romano, Asiago and Parmesan cheeses, sautéed onions and side of au jus dipping sauce. The sandwich will be offered as small (with two ounces of roast beef), regular (with four ounces of roast beef) and large (six ounces of roast beef) sizes.

The roast beef is a top round cut of beef. Efforts to promote the new sub are part of a beef industry initiative to encourage the sale of products made from the chuck and round, which are undervalued cuts of beef.

"We are excited about partnering with Quizno's because of its phenomenal growth in the restaurant industry," said Lisa Hefner, Seminole, Okla., beef producer and chairman of the Joint Foodservice Committee.

"Research from NPD Food-World shows that sub shops are enjoying traffic increases at a rate about five times the quick service restaurant average, and sales increases at a rate about four times the quick service restaurant average. That makes Quizno's a perfect place to move more beef."

"Quizno's is excited about the upcoming launch of the Bistro Beef Sub; we expect it to be a big hit with our customers," said Stacie Lange, Quizno's vice president for Public Relations. "We look forward to working with the state beef councils on the promotion of this great beef product."

Well Preserved

Relishes

As summer draws to a close gardens are still managing to produce an assortment of vegetables. When you have all the basic tomatoes, corn, and green beans preserved that your family will use for the year, you may be seeking some creative ways to use the leftovers in the garden along with the extra onions and peppers.

Various relishes and pickled vegetables make use of those end of the season treasures while providing a tasty accompaniment to meals and sandwiches. Their zesty flavors complement the blandness of a plain meat. Tossed into a macaroni salad or potato salad, relishes add color as well as flavor.

Relishes are made from chopped fruits and vegetables cooked to a desired consistency in a spicy vinegar solution. Some are sweet and some are sour. A survey of cookbooks reveals interesting names such as rummage relish, fall garden relish, and end of the garden relish.

Relishes are relatively easy to make because the vinegar used to flavor them increases the acidity of the vegetables allowing most of them to be processed in the boiling water bath. If you are not sure how you will like a particular recipe, try a test batch using half the recipe.

Select appropriate ingredients for success. Use fresh produce for best results. Ideally, fruits and vegetables will be picked less than 24 hours before pickling. If it will be longer, the produce should be refrigerated until ready to use.

Ingredients for relishes should be chopped into uniform pieces for an attractive appearance. Besides its contribution to flavor, salt acts as a preservative and adds crispness by drawing juices and sugar from the vegetables. Use canning or pickling salt which does not contain additives. Regular table salt or iodized salt may make the brine cloudy and darken pickles and relishes.

Use a high quality vinegar with a five percent acidity level. Mellow flavored cider vinegar is commonly used, but some recipes call for white vinegar or other flavored vinegar. White vinegar should be used when color is important.

Usually white cane or beet sugar is called for. Brown sugar, honey, and maple syrup are called for in recipes needing a more robust flavor. Only use a sugar substitute if you are using a recipe specifically designed for it. Sugar helps to firm the vegetables in a relish. Spices and herbs add to the flavor of the relishes. Most recipes call for whole fresh spices.

Powdered and salted forms of spices and herbs may cloud the pickling mixture. Some recipes add the spices and herbs directly to pickling mixtures, but many recipes tell you to tie them in a spice bag, cheesecloth, or a coffee filter and hold them in the pickling solution to impart their flavor. Avoid using hard water because the minerals in hard water will react with the brine to affect the quality of the relish.

Avoid types of metals than may react with chemicals in the food or brine. Avoid utensils made of zinc, iron, brass, copper, galvanized metal or cracked enamelware. These can cause undesirable taste and color changes. Enamel that is not chipped, stainless steel, glassware, and food-grade plastic are appropriate utensils to use.

Use updated recipes developed since 1994 when USDA canning standards were revised. Because the ingredients going into a relish are low acid foods, this is not a time to use the little bit of extra corn or onion that is left over. Measure accurately so that you do not reduce the acidity level of the finished product. Relishes are canned by hot packing the brined ingredients. Work quickly to fill the jars with hot relish. Include adequate syrup. Allow adequate headspace—usually ½ inch.

Process the hot packed relish according to the recipe. It is not safe to open kettle can relishes without processing. Having the water in the canner at the boiling point when you add the filled hot jars saves time and results in a better seal with no siphoning.

The following corn relish recipe is tasty and colorful. It can be made using fresh or frozen corn.

Pickled Corn Relish

10 cups fresh whole kernel corn (16 to 20 medium-size ears), or six 10-ounce packages of frozen corn
2½ cups diced sweet red peppers
2½ cups diced sweet green peppers
1½ cups chopped celery
1¼ cups diced onions
1½ cups sugar
5 cups vinegar (5%)
2½ tablespoons canning salt
2½ teaspoons celery seed
2½ tablespoons dry mustard
1¼ teaspoons turmeric
Yield: About 9 pints.

Procedure: Boil ears of corn 5 minutes. Dip in cold water. Cut whole kernels from cob or use six 10-ounce packages of frozen corn. Combine peppers, celery, onions, sugar, vinegar, salt, and celery seed in a saucepan. Bring to a boil and simmer 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Mix mustard and turmeric in ½ cup of the simmered mixture. Add this mixture and corn to the hot mixture. Simmer another 5 minutes. If desired, thicken mixture with a flour paste made of ¼ cup flour blended in ¼ cup cold water and stir frequently.

Fill jars with hot mixture, leaving ½-inch headspace. Adjust lids and process half-pints or pints for 15 minutes in a boiling-water canner at altitudes under 1,000 feet. (Process 20 minutes at altitudes between 1,001 and 6,000 feet, and 25 minutes above 6,000 feet.)

Poise, Professionalism At Center Of Linton's Reign

Dairy Goat Representative Prepares For October's National Convention In Hagerstown

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

TIMONIUM, Md. — Jen Linton believes that if you present yourself professionally, people will listen to you.

That simple adage works wonders — even if it takes up to an hour to explain, at least to one nonfarmer, that milk can't come from a male goat.

Answering such a question provided a learning experience to dealing with the public for Maryland Dairy Goat Association Youth Representative Jen Linton, 16, daughter of Glenn and Laura Linton, Port Deposit, Md.

Jen, who assisted at the dairy goat show last week at the Maryland State Fair, noted that it's nice to be recognized — and the respect comes when "you look more official, and people are willing to listen to what you have to say," she said.

One question she answered at her hometown Cecil County, Maryland fair came from a city dweller. Why can't a male goat, or buck, produce milk? She spent an hour literally giving a "crash course" in dairying, explaining how important genetics and reproduction are, to the fellow. "And he still didn't get it," she said.

Jen is an 11th grade correspondence school member at Keystone National High School. She is taking Community College courses with a specialization in veterinary medicine.

Jen began her reign in mid-April this year at the Maryland Dairy Goat Association (MDGA) Spring Workshop at the Howard County Fairgrounds. The reign lasts a year.

She also exhibits at the Cecil County Fair and promotes dairy goats to the public at various events. She also hands out ribbons and helps where necessary.

The president of the 4-H Explorers in Port Deposit, Jen is the oldest in her club. Her mother is 4-H leader. She also exhibited goats at the Maryland State Fair and participated in the fair's 4-H Dairy Goat Judging Contest.

Jen also shows rabbits, poultry, hives, and raises dairy steers. She also participates with her sister, Molly, 12.

Jen serves on the Cecil County Fair board and will speak at the National Dairy Goat Convention, along with alternate Laura Forsythe, in Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 13-19.

At the national convention, at the Clarion Convention Center in Hagerstown, scheduled is a Friday evening banquet Oct. 18 with a goat auction Oct. 19, noon, at the center. About 29 goats will be auctioned off.

Jen plans to speak at the convention.

For more information about the national convention, contact Bonnie Kempe, Martinsburg, W.Va., (304) 258-3944.

Entries will be accepted on Saturday, Sept. 14, 7-9 a.m. For competition guidelines, send a self-addressed stamped business envelope to Harvest Basket Competition, Longwood Gardens, P.O. The Harvest Basket Competition is part of Longwood's annual GardenFest celebration of September's beauty and bounty. GardenFest revisits the heyday of life at Longwood Gardens during the first half of this century, when Longwood was a du Pont country estate. The three-week celebration shares Pierre du Pont's passion for gardens with a wealth of programs ranging from plant walks to cooking demonstrations. A heritage trail highlighting historic points of interest travels through gardens blossoming with renewed freshness and vibrant colors just before autumn's chill. Every day, visitors can see antique tractors; a vast array of gourds, squash, and pumpkins; and a G-scale model garden railway that travels past miniature Longwood landmarks, including the Conservatory. On weekends, visitors can hear a carillon concert at Longwood's historic Chimes Tower and play old-fashioned garden games.

Longwood is open daily 9 a.m.-6 p.m.

Cassie Hay Reigns As Somerset County Fair Queen

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent
SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — "I have always loved the Somerset County Fair," said a smiling Cassandra "Cassie" Hay of Berlin, who won the 2002 Fair Queen title after a competition at the Somerset County Fair in Meyersdale on Aug. 17.

Fair Queen Cassie succeeded Erika Thompson of Berlin, who was last year's reigning queen. Cassie is the daughter of Larry and Gale Hay of Berlin.

She is a 2002 graduate of Berlin Brothersvalley High School and plans to attend the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown this fall to pursue a degree in public relations and communications. She plans to someday have a career promoting the business, industries and commerce of Somerset County.

Her court includes Kimberly Jo Yoder of Meyersdale; Jade LeLynn Wareham of Rockwood; Heather Will of Somerset; and Keri Miller of Somerset.

The competitors were judged on poise, appearance, neatness, ability to communicate and knowledge of the fair industry. They each were required to write an essay on "what my fair means to me."

Cassie has a long list of accomplishments in her high school career. They include Somerset County's Outstanding Young Woman for 2002, Who's Who Among American High School Students and Administration Student Leadership Award.

In high school, she has been active in forensics, SADD, student council, band, chorus, school musical, cheerleading, girls varsity soccer, varsity basketball, Powder Puff football, French Club, prom committee, Chemistry Club, Ski club and Varsity Dance Squad.

She was the recipient of the Pennsylvania Outstanding Young Women contest for 2002 and Most Valuable Cheerleader in 12th grade. She won first place in public speaking at State 4-H Days in her 11th grade year and also won Master Showman at the Somerset County Fair in her 11th and 12th grade years. She was also a Pennsylvania representative to the National 4-H Congress this past year.

Cassie has also been a Laurel Arts dancer since the second grade and has performed in the company's special performing dance company since seventh grade.

In her church, she has been a member of the Trinity United Church of Christ Youth Group and a youth usher.

After a week of activities, Cassie related that the fair has always had special meaning to her personally.

"I've always been involved

Somerset County Fair Queen Cassie Hay, center, of Berlin and some members of her court brought pigs to the fair this year. With Cassie are Heather Will, left, and Keri Miller, both of Somerset.

with the fair and I've loved to be here every year," she said. "I'd run for fair queen over again in a heart beat. It has been a very good experience."

After she heard her name announced as the 2002 fair queen, she felt "a combination of feelings — excitement and happiness."

Cassie believes what makes the Somerset County Fair special is the focus on agriculture and also the friendly people.

"The people here are so nice and fun and you can walk up to anyone and joke around. Everyone helps each other and you can't find that at a lot of places," she said. "At the heart of this fair are agriculture and good people."

She is a member of Mountain Top 4-H Club and has taken pigs to the fair for several years. She is currently serving as vice president of her 4-H club and has served as secretary in the past.

Her two older brothers Kelby and Chris have been active in taking animals to the fair in past years as well. Cassie and her family live on a beef farm in Brothersvalley Township in Somerset County.

Years ago, the Burrells used this method but can't remember exactly how it was done or the time required to cook per pound. This made the best filet of beef Eva has ever tasted and she would like to use it for several cookouts.

QUESTION — Dave Wilder, Gladwyne, grows lingonberries in Berks County. He wants to know uses for this Old World fruit. The Latin name, Wilder writes, is Vaccinium vitis-idaea. Native varieties are sometimes called cowberry.

ANSWER — A reader from Greencastle wanted a recipe for pancakes using corn meal, which she remembers her grandmother making. She wanted thin crunchy ones. Thanks to Lee Laverty, Mount Joy, for sending this recipe. She writes that the name for this bread came from the time a pioneer woman was fixing her hungry boy a cake of cornbread that would be Johnny's cake. Other versions say the bread was suitable to be carried on a journey, and the designated name "Johnny" is a corruption of the word "journey."

Peppers Add Flavor, Color, Nutrition

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania peppers are a favorite flavor enhancing ingredient in many recipes featuring meats or other vegetables. And because they come in various shades of red, yellow, orange and purple besides the basic green, they can also add a rainbow of color. Best of all, they are a significant source of vitamin C as well.

Sweet bell peppers are usually sold in the mature green stage. However, if green peppers are left on the plant to fully mature, they will turn color. Most varieties will turn red but some turn brilliant shades of yellow or orange griddle and fry to a golden brown on each side.

Stir batter occasionally to keep well mixed. Serve hot with butter. Enjoy.

ANSWER — Colleen Lovell, 12-year-old Lycoming County dairy maid, enjoys making this recipe, which she recommends eating while sipping a glass of milk.

Peanut Butter Fudge

1 cup graham cracker crumbs (very fine)

1½ cups peanut butter

¾ cup butter

4 cups confectioners' sugar

1 can sweetened condensed milk

Mix together ingredients and spread in a well-greased 9x13-inch pan. Let set up in refrigerator.

ANSWER — Malinda Renno, Fort Royal, wanted a recipe for barbecued beans, which appeared in the Farm Journal sometime during the 1960s. She lost the recipe, but recalls that it had meatballs and a very good barbecue flavor. Thanks to Shirley Wartenluft, Robeson, for sending this recipe, which she writes appeared in 1968 in the Farm Journal.

Homebaked Beans

5 cups navy or pea beans

1 pound salt pork

2½ cups brown sugar

1 pound 13-ounce can tomatoes

2 medium onions, chopped

2 tablespoons prepared mustard

½ teaspoon salt

½ teaspoon pepper

Wash and pick over beans. Cover well with water and soak overnight. Next morning, simmer beans in salted water until done when tested. Drain beans. Save liquid. Chop salt pork and place in bottom of bean pot or large casserole. Alternate beans with mixture of brown sugar, tomatoes, onions, mustard, salt and pepper. Pour on the water in which beans were cooked and enough hot water to cover beans. Cover pot with lid or aluminum foil. Bake in 300-degree oven for 6-8 hours.

Shirley also sent this recipe, which is from the Farm Journal Freezing and Canning Cookbook. Shirley writes that although meatballs are not included, any good meatball mixture can be prepared and put into beans before baking.

Barbecued Lima Beans

1 pound dried lima beans

4 cups water

1½ cups chopped onion

1 cup brown sugar

1 cup ketchup

¾ cup dark corn syrup

1 tablespoon salt

1 tablespoon liquid smoke

9 drops Tabasco

Bacon slices

Soak washed beans in water overnight. Do not drain. Add onions, bring to a boil and simmer until beans are almost tender, about 30 minutes.

Combine remaining ingredients. Stir into beans. Put in baking pan. Bake at 400 degrees. Place bacon strips on top. Bake uncovered until beans are bubbly and bacon brown.

ANSWER — Wayne Erb, Mount Joy, wanted to know how to freeze potatoes for French fries, and how long should they be cooked in oil so they don't turn black? Thanks to Shirley Wartenluft, Robeson, for sending the recipe she uses.

French Fried Potatoes

6 medium potatoes, peeled

Cold water

Salt and pepper

Fat for frying

Cut potatoes lengthwise, then crosswise into ¾-inch strip. Rinse in cold water, dry thoroughly between towels.

Fry small amounts at a time in deep 360-degree fat, about 5 minutes, until tender, but not brown. Drain on paper towels. Repeat with remaining potatoes. Cool to room temperature. Package in containers and freeze. Recommended storage: one month. To serve: arrange potatoes on baking sheet. Put in 425 degree oven, 10 minutes until brown, turning once. Season to taste. Serves 6.

As they turn color, their sugar content increases along with their vitamin C content. Green peppers have twice as much vitamin C as citrus fruit by weight while red peppers have three times as much plus beta carotene. Hot peppers are also high in vitamin C.

Pet Show At Bedford Fair

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent
BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — It was a pleasant summer morning and kids and pets wandered from all angles of the fairgrounds to the annual Bedford Fair Pet Show.

A little girl named Whitley Furry of New Enterprise was carrying her pet enclosed in her tiny hand. It was a hermit crab, not really cuddly and soft, but on Whitley, anything would look cute.

Next to the smallest was a furry hamster owned by Ben Hershberger of Everett. Entered in the "best dressed" portion of the contest, the hamster was wearing flannel pajamas.

Elana Weyant of Alum Bank showed off her pot-bellied pig in the best trained contest. Willie is just six months old and between grunts rolled over for a belly rub.

He competed with a bashful dog who refused to sing on mouth organ cue. However, a fuzzy collie pup barked on key.

Showing off her five-week-old Jack Russell puppy was easy for Autumn Stuffle of Saxton. Autumn showed off just one of three puppies being oohed and ahed over by spectators.

It was a fun morning with lots of neat prizes and handsome plaques and it left judge, Gail Stottlemeyer in a turmoil as she tried to react fairly to each of the categories. "Next year I will ask for more categories," she said. "I think every kid here deserved a prize."

There were goats wearing pajamas, a poodle in a ballerina costume, and a wide assortment of other contests.

Dogs with long tails and short tails and long ears and short ears. But, where were the felines? Cats were totally absent from the event and probably preferred cat naps over being paraded around on a warm summer morning.

Prizes awarded went to Amanda Hammond, best groomed and best trained; Autumn Stuffle, showmanship; Elana Weyant, best trick; Ben Hershberger, best dressed; Cory Furry, largest pet and longest ears; Whitley Furry, smallest pet; Amanda Horton, longest tail.

Amanda Horton's dog won the prize for the longest tail.

Amanda Hammond had the best groomed and best trained pet.

City Folk Find Farm, Share Loves

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Correspondent
NEW PARIS (Bedford Co.) — Pam and Harry Jones were living near Washington D.C. when they discovered rural Bedford County. It was a perfect spot for their love of horses.

Pam, an art teacher, also found it to be ideal for finding subjects to paint or sketch. She is an art teacher at St. Patrick's School. Upon hearing her students talk of their equestrian adventures while delving into their favorite subject of art, Pam was inspired.

The school was attempting to raise funds for various projects that year and Pam offered a long weekend on the farm with horseback riding and art lessons. She sold chances and raised $1,400.

It was a weekend adventure, which planted a seed for something bigger and better to come.

The Jones' now offer a two-week experience for young ladies ages 8 through 14 throughout the months of June and July. Their rambling farmhouse is headquarters where art classes are held each morning. While some of the girls are elbow deep in paints, others are learning to ride.

Equestrian lessons are taught by Adrienne and Aaron Coble of Bedford. This young brother and sister love to teach and ride. They bring their own horses to mingle with those owned by Pam and Harry.

As the Cobles teach the girls riding skills, others immerse themselves painting bags, T-shirts, and pottery. The girls try their hands at almost every media including oils, watercolors, and charcoal sketches.

Subjects are easy to come by in this picturesque area. They produce pictures of horses, cows, and make trips to the scenic countryside to sketch covered bridges, buffalo, and bubbling streams. Further art talents were developed this year painting Ukrainian eggs.

Through it all, Pam remains the steadfast instructor, encouraging and critiquing. A big farm cat might find a lap for a petting session as the girls take breaks.

Activities are never ending and food is plentiful. Cook and former caterer Jessica Benton provides the vittles.

"The kids think I am a great cook so I love every one of them," Jessica laughs. Her bubbly personality is a great match for the energetic girls.

"Pam and I sit down late in the spring and plan the menus," Jessica explains. "Our best buddy is 'Sam's Club.' Since each camp session lasts for two weeks throughout the months of June and July, we repeat the same menus every two weeks. Some groups eat a lot and some not as much."

Talents from the community are also utilized. Vi Laws, a crafts lady from the Glade Pike, taught a class on making cornhusk dolls. Ben Buck and Dave Koontz offered a fishing demonstration teaching them how to cast and catch.

band birds. The days sometime end with an old-fashioned hayride.

Every two-week session is treated to a night of square dancing with Skimmer and Mary Wilson's 4-H Club. Quick learners, the girls are soon do-si-doing like old pros.

During the weekends, the girls enjoy the Alpine slide at Seven Springs, kayaking on the Juniata River, dress rehearsals at Old Bedford Village. This year, one of the productions was "Man of La Mancha" which starred local resident Larry Faupal. He spent an evening teaching the girls archery.

The girls hike Blue Knob and enjoy a barbecue and games by the poolside.

"We keep them as busy as possible to avoid homesickness," Pam said, and admits she is ready for a rest when the two months are over. "But I enjoy every minute of those girls," she adds.

Elana Weyant and her potbellied pig, which did the best tricks and was the most unusual.

One of our younger grandchildren just had a birthday and invited us to her house for a meal. The next day she had a party, and one of the features was pony rides for everyone. The Amish neighbors provided the pony and the children enjoyed the new experience.

Another grandchild, who lives far away, also had a party in August. She had a tie-dying party. Her mother bought pillowcases for all of the girls and also kits to use. They were well-pleased with the results and now can use them for slumber parties. The girl also asked her mother to make a freezer of homemade ice cream to eat with the cake.

This summer a grandson had a pool party for his birthday. Because his parents have a large new pool in their back yard, they invited a lot of his little friends. He sent us pictures of the cake served on their screened-in porch.

I remember when our son was invited to a birthday party that included bowling. This was a while ago, and I thought it would be an expensive party because they paid for everyone. Then they went to a restaurant for refreshments.

When I was 5 years old, my mother invited some neighbor girls to our home. I have a picture of the group in my new express wagon. Believe it or not, I still have the wagon.

Recently, I read my mother's diary of the event. And she noted that I did not act very nicely. No wonder I did not have any more parties.

Some folks look forward to their birthdays while others don't even want to think about them. We hope that most of our children's parties will leave pleasant memories.

ANSWER — In response to Eleanor Deal's question for a good book to help identify Depression glass, Barbara Rigby, Wellsboro, recommends Collector Books (Schroeder Publishing Co.), P.O. Box 3009, Paducah, KY 42002-3009. Ask for a listing of their books of which they have an excellent selection, Barbara writes.. Another good reference is the Internet

Web site www.glass-show.com.

ANSWER — Debra Alliger wanted to know how to clean, re-season, and store cast-iron skillets that become sticky from not being used. Thanks to a reader for sending the following instructions: Spray cast-iron with oven cleaner and follow cleaning directions listing on the can. Repeat the process if necessary. To re-season, warm skillet and grease with a thin coating of vegetable oil or fat (never use salted fats) over entire skillet including all corners. Place in oven and heat to 300-350 degrees for 30-60 minutes. Allow to remain in oven until it cools to room temperature. Store in warm, dry place with a paper towel inside to absorb any moisture.

ANSWER — Ronald Clouser, Williamstown, requested a source to purchase wicks for a kerosene cooking stove. A reader writes a large inventory of wicks are available from Miller's Hardware, 1104 W. Main St., Valley View. Call (570) 682-3960 with the model number.

ANSWER — For the person who wanted a spray to repel deer and rabbits from gardens, here are several homemade recipe repellents sent in by a reader. She also writes that she places Ivory soap in old nylon stockings and ties to trees to repel deer.

Liver Repellent Spray For Deer, Rabbits

1 pound raw liver (any type)

2 gallons warm water

2 gallon bucket

Garden-spray equipment

Place liver in the bucket and cover with water. Allow it to soak for 30 minutes, then discard liver and use the liquid as a spray. You may save the livers from chicken and place in the freezer until you have one pound to use to make this spray.

Dried Blood Spray For Deer, Rabbits

1 tablespoon dried blood

2 gallons warm water

Stirrer

Garden spray equipment

Be safe: dried blood is rich in nitrogen and may burn plants if applied in concentrated doses. Measure carefully when you prepare this spray and use it somewhat sparingly. Dissolve the dried blood in a bucket of water and apply as a spray as needed.

Egg-Based Deer Repellent

1 1/2 dozen eggs

5 gallons water

Electric mixer with large mixing bowl

5 gallon bucket

Stir stirring stick

Garden spray equipment

Beat eggs in bowl, pour into bucket. Add water slowly and stir thoroughly. Apply as a spray. Be sure to spray clear water through the spray equipment after you have used this formula. Egg residue left in the nozzle may clog the equipment. To maintain effectiveness, apply spray again after rains.

Castor-Oil Mole Repellent
Castor beans planted around the perimeter of the garden are a traditional deterrent for moles and shrews. You can substitute this formula for the plants.

1/2 cup castor oil

2 gallons warm water

Stirrer

Mix oil and water in a bucket and use as a soil drench around the perimeter of the garden. Apply the drench as soon as you see any signs of mole activity. Within three weeks, the garden should be mole free.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know how to keep potatoes over the winter. Can they be stored in picnic-type coolers? If in a garden shed, unheated, how much cold can potatoes tolerate? Thanks to Eldon R. Martin, Abbotstown, for writing that his family raises and sells Kennebec potatoes. They do not wash the potatoes so they will store well for winter use if kept in the dark at approximately 50 degrees.

Is Your Drinking Water Safe?

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Homeowners and business people often take it for granted that the water coming out of their tap is safe for drinking, but a number of potentially harmful substances can harm your family or customers. These include bacteria, nitrates, iron and manganese. Some of these substances have health effects and others can cause unwanted stains and odors.

If you depend on your own well or spring for your drinking water, it is your responsibility to have your water tested periodically at a certified water-testing lab. No government agency is going to require you to have your water tested.

On Wednesday, Oct. 16, Penn State Cooperative Extension will be having a Safe Drinking Water Clinic. This clinic is designed for people interested in having their drinking water tested and finding out how to protect and maintain their water systems.

Two Penn State Water Quality Extension Specialists will be conducting the program. In addition, Prosser Labs will be offering water testing for a fee. Containers for water testing will be available at the Wayne County Cooperative Extension office starting Sept. 2.

The Safe Drinking Water Clinic will take place from 2-4 p.m. at the Wayne County Visitors Center Community Room in Honesdale. There is no charge for the program. However, registration is required.

Credit Card Survival Skills

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension is offering a free workshop Credit Card Survival Skills, Monday, Sept. 30, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., at the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in the Chester County Government Services Center, 601 Westtown Road, West Chester.

To register or for more information call Penn State Cooperative Extension at (610) 396-3500 by Sept. 23.

~ The Advantages of the Fiberglass Wheels are ~

Fiberglass Wheels

- Very Low Maintenance Costs
These wheels are built to last a lifetime and beyond without ever having to replace any parts on the wheels under normal use. The only maintenance required will be tightening up or replacing the tire or rubber.
- High Performance Regardless of the Elements
Wheels stay tight even in hot, dry conditions - No more loose rattling spokes - ever!
- Rugged Heavy Duty Design
It takes a major accident or impact to break or twist these wheels.
- Hard Durable Surface
Resists scuffs and scratches, paint job stays shinier.
- Easier Cleaning
Spokes have all rounded corners, no tight spots for dirt to get into.

~ The Advantages of the Fiberglass Springs are: ~

Fiberglass Springs

- Lightweight
A fiberglass spring weighs 22 lbs. less than a steel spring, 44 lbs. less weight on the carriage.
- Durable One Piece Design
No bolts to give out or wear.
- Better Performance With Heavy Loads
The more weight, the better the ride, will not go flat and bottom out.
- No Rusting Ever
Paint will not blister or peel off. No rust stains running out between the plys, providing a nicer appearance and much easier cleaning.
- A Lifetime Guarantee
If these springs ever break under normal use, we will replace them free of charge.
- Stabilizer Kits - Now Available
For a smoother ride and less bounce

POURED SOLID CONCRETE

STORAGE SYSTEM SPECIALISTS

START WITH THE BEST! POURED CONCRETE WALLS

You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs. more per cubic foot! Far denser! What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks
- Concrete Pit Tops

Rare granite milk pails are featured in this lovely exhibit of small dairy items.

Fifth All-Dairy Antiques Show To Feature Jersey Breed Items

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The breed of the world's most famous dairy cow — Elsie, the Borden Cow — will be featured at the fifth annual All-Dairy Antiques and Collectibles Show Sept. 21-25, in Harrisburg.

Elsie was a fictional character created in the 1930s for print advertising and radio commercials. She literally came alive at the 1939 New York World's Fair and has become a living legend for over 60 years.

Husband Elmer joined her in 1940 and during World War II he became "spokesbull" for Borden's Chemical Division for the famous product "Elmer's Glue."

Since then hundreds of collectibles have developed around Elsie, Elmer, and their offspring, daughter Beulah, and son Beau-regard. Many of these famous items and advertising pieces are expected to be displayed, bought, sold and traded by exhibitors and collectors at this largest all-dairy antiques and collectibles show in the United States.

A unique Jersey exhibit will be featured via special permission and courtesy of National Dairy Shrine (NDS). This 15,000-member organization with headquarters in Columbus, Ohio will provide more than a dozen Jersey cow models from the NDS

Visitors Center and Hoard's Historical Museum in Fort Atkinson, Wis. to be displayed. They represent the changes over many decades in the "true type" Jersey cow as determined by Jersey breed authorities. This will be the first time this collection has ever been exhibited outside the museum in Fort Atkinson.

The show will open at 10 a.m.

On display will be this bentwood butter churn showing patent dates of Aug. 7, 1877 and June 18, 1882.

on Saturday, Sept. 21 in the Farm Show Complex. It will run through Wednesday, Sept. 25.

On Sunday, Sept. 22 from 2-4 p.m. a special open house and program will be conducted for dairy farm families and the general public. It will feature free ice cream items and give parents and grandparents a special opportunity to share their knowledge and experiences of early dairy farm life with their younger generations. At 3 p.m. special recognition will be given to those who have exhibited at all five shows. Fourteen exhibitors will be eligible and all are expected to participate for their fifth time this year.

About 70 exhibitors from 12 states are expected this year. During the first four shows buyers have come from 14 states including Florida, Texas, and Washington plus many in the midwest and northeast.

Because this show is restricted to dairy antiques, collectibles, and milk bottles, it is unique. Exhibitors and visitors will find it a great place to see and buy, as well as learn, because much effort is devoted to making the displays educational with descriptive labels and signs. Held in conjunction with the 39th All-American Dairy Show, the All-Dairy Antiques and Collectibles Show allows visitors to view seldom-seen dairy tools used in the late 1800s and early 1900s, while seeing some of the nation's modern and best dairy cattle in the barns and show ring.

Those interested in exhibiting free of charge should contact Dr. Darwin Braund, 238 Agricultural Administration Building, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802-2600, phone (814) 3-1383, or Lolly Leshner, PA All-Dairy Antique Show, Farm Show Complex, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408, phone (717) 787-2905, or you can e-mail aads@state.pa.us.

Registration forms will be sent to all interested persons.

Registration, admission and parking are free.

Some of the Dreisbach memorabilia includes a rare copy of an auction notice from a 1892 newspaper, 8-quart tin milk pail, unique Jersey maid picture printed on silk fabric, and tin butterchurn.

Dreisbach Memorabilia On Display At All-American

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Out in the green fields surrounding the town of Hamburg, the Jersey herd of Dr. Robert "Doc" and Helene Dreisbach spend most of their day grazing in the meadows. This purebred herd, known as Wilderness Jerseys, has been called Long Meadows Farm home for the past 30 years.

The herd was formed in 1970, and so was the excitement and habit of collecting Jersey antiques and memorabilia. Many unique and rare Jersey items can be seen while visiting this Berks County farm. A similar experience can be enjoyed at the All-Dairy Antiques and Collectibles Show, Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg, Sept. 21-25.

While traveling, "Doc" always makes his rest stops at an antique barn or collectibles store. One of the favorite pieces in their collection is a rare newspaper clipping of a herd dispersal conducted in August of 1892. The Kemble Farm of Solebury Township, Bucks County advertised to sell all 40 head of cows and heifers in the Intelligencer Print Newspaper of Doylestown. The auctioneer was W. F. Paxson.

Other items found in the collection include many different copies of the Jersey Maid and her jug, which can be seen throughout the farmhouse. One very special picture is the Dairy Maid and her cow printed on a silk fabric and it is quite a prize.

For many holidays and special occasions, "Doc" and Helene's daughters, Patricia Stroup of California and Carol Greathouse of Pennsylvania, search for unique Jersey items to present to their parents. A tin tabletop butter churn with wooden handles and lid, a Roseville Pottery Jersey Jug, and an 8-quart tin milk pail stamped with Jersey Queen Dairy of Philadelphia are among their favorite gift items. Many milk bottles can be found in the Dreisbach collection labeled with the Jersey milk bottle logo: Queen of Quality. This is the quality mark for marketing All-Jersey Milk by the National All-Jersey Cattle Association, Inc.,

and can be found on many old milk bottles.

Helene, along with one full time herdsman, Chuck Porter, care for the herd and all of the young stock. "Doc" keeps busy with a full time veterinarian practice, while Helene finds time to be on many dairy boards. She is a member of the Marketing Board, the Bio-Security Task Force Chairman, and the Board of Directors of the American Jersey Cattle Association. In 1997, she received the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association Distinguished Dairy Women Award.

The Dreisbachs find time in their busy schedules to take world trips with many farm organizations and feel one is never too old to learn something new and valuable. Also, they say one can never know where a precious Jersey antique or collectible may be found. Trips to possible opportunities are always included in their travel.

The Dreisbach family has been a part of the All-American Dairy Show for many years. Their daughters, Patricia and Carol, showed many times in the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show and the Mid-Atlantic Jersey Junior Show. They have sponsored Mid-Atlantic Regional Jersey Special Awards for many years.

For inquiries about the All-Dairy Antiques and Collectibles Show, contact Dr. Darwin Braund at (814) 863-1383. Visit the Dreisbachs at www.usjersey.com or ongmeadows.com.

Buyers Cautious

At Recent Toy Auction

It was a buyer's market at the Skinner toys, dolls and collectibles auction, July 20.

Blame it on summer doldrums or the stock market. Only a few items sold over $1,000 and many didn't sell at all.

There were old and not so old items to choose from that included Barbie dolls, and mid 1840s' dolls. The stars were a large "Lydia" china shoulder head doll, Germany, c.1840 that skyrocketed from her $1,000-$1,500 estimate to a final bid of $7,638 and a Bru, c.1870, France, wood-bodied swivel-neck lady doll that fetched $6,169. A 1960 Barbie and Ken with clothing expected to bring $200-$400 sold for $294.

However a Barbie and Ken gift set, c.1963, in original box went almost double the estimate for $2,938.

There were bargains to be had with late 19th and early 20th century tin toys. With a couple of exceptions prices were in the low hundreds. Some might have gone for more except for damage. The hands down winner in this category was an Ives tin boy on a velocipede, c.1870. A similar piece had previously sold in a Skinner's toy auction a year ago. The estimate on this toy was $10,000-$15,000. It sold for $12,338.

The one robot, Cragstan Mr. Atomic, with damage, fetched $2,468 over it's estimate of $1,000-$1,500.

CLUES: There are some lessons to be learned. Some are obvious. The Barbie and Ken gift set could have gone for even more. It had the original and unopened box. New or old toys and dolls always command a bigger price in the original box, original clothes, paint, parts, and so forth.

Dolls and toys made by a well-known, quality maker that don't come to market often can be expected to do well. When a doll is in a rare form, 19th century and by a famous maker collectors will bid high. The Bru lady doll, finely dressed and with a beautifully painted face did as expected.

Toys with missing paint and parts can be bargains if you can get them repaired inexpensively. In the case of 19th and early 20th century damaged toys, parts are hard to come by. When they aren't expertly repaired it's a waste of money.

Many 19th and early 20th century toys were made in sets such as firemen, engines, and a firehouse. Collectors with patience often buy partial sets and add on later.

Avoid reproductions...the paint will be too bright. Another no, no are "married" toys.

This is the adding of new parts to a toy to which it did not originally belong.

Try and visit museum toys and reputable dealers to get a feel for the look. For example just because a toy looks old, it may not be. Often burnt umber and other artificial means are used to cover-up a repainted toy and to simulate aging. However, early toys can have crazing lines formed by age on tin toys.

The tin toys, so coveted by collectors, are made from sheet iron, plated with a protective layer of tin. This kept them from rusting. Before the Industrial Revolution they were stamped out and molded by hand-operated devices and hand-painted.

By the 19th century with the development of powered machinery and the invention of chromolithography it was possible to turn out thousands of tin toys cheaply. Before World War I, Nuremberg Germany was the chief maker and exporter. That changed after the War. The tin toy market developed in other countries and Japan. Just before World War II Germany began once more to make tin-plated toys. Up to the 1950s they were marked "Made in the U.S. Zone." Those made in post-war Japan were marked "Occupied Japan."

If you can't afford the vintage toys, you can still find these post war toys in flea markets.

Prices are going up as they get scarcer.

Antiques Questions And Answers

I have a collection of 100 pieces of Japanese Imari. They were bought in 1946 by an uncle who worked there then. How can I get them appraised?

M.S. - Hickory, NC

Check the Yellow pages for a listing of Antiques Appraisers, members of one the professional appraiser societies. Or, contact the Mint Museum in Charlotte, as for a curator of Oriental porcelains. Then ask who they would recommend.

This is a photo of three glass items I have had for 30 years. When I went to the York Museum there were identical pieces in their Roman section. Any information appreciated.

What you have is known as Venetian glass, with the ribbing and applied blue trim. It was popular in America in the early 20th century and much was brought back by travelers to Italy. Your goblets could sell in a shop for $50 each or more.

I bought this copper ewer with a brass handle at an auction 20 years ago. I was told it is Arabian. What can you tell me about it?

E.B. - Charlotte, NC

In the 1980s copper serving and cooking utensils were imported from the mid east and sold as antiques. Your ewer was probably one of them. It could sell in a shop for $40-65.

I have a one pint glass peanut butter jar. It has raised letter, "Jumbo Brand", with an elephant head. Also, Patented "ALL THE CHILDREN LIKE JUMBO" JUNE 24, 1930. Does this jar have value?

B.A. - Ellenboro, NC

As an advertising collectible it could sell for $150-175.

While cleaning out my late father's belongings I found flyers goggles. My father had pinned a written note saying "Japanese goggles." They have yellow lenses. Are they a keepsake or worth money?

D.J. - Charlotte, NC

As a souvenir of World War 11 they could sell for $20.

This metal vase was given to my grandmother for winning a cotillion dancing contest in the 1880s. I need value and information.

D.H. - Cincinnati, OH

Your silver plate trophy was made by James W. Tufts, Boston MA around 1881. In good, polished condition, it could sell in an antique shop for around $50.

We own a miniature portrait, painted on ivory and signed A. Renoir. We have contacted auction houses to verify if it was done by Auguste Renoir and a curator at the Cincinnati Art Museum...no conclusive results. We also researched Renoir and found he had early in his career painted in the classical style and that he had painted on ivory. What next?

T.W. - Cincinnati, OH

Use the internet and a scanned photo with a close-up of the signature. Contact the Louvre in Paris curator of Impressionist paintings who in turn could lead you to experts in French portrait miniatures, etc. Computers can translate into French. Let me know what happens.

PENRYN (Lancaster Co.) — Bring your Pennsylvania German fraktur to Penryn on Sept. 8 to have a couple of the country's top fraktur experts evaluate what you have.

Check attics and family Bibles for fraktur — handwritten text and colorful watercolor drawings that were made to celebrate life and rites of passage. Fraktur examples are birth and baptismal certificates, religious text on slips of paper in a German Bible, family registers, writing exercises and rewards from a parochial schoolmaster.

The fraktur fest is just one part of a public event Sunday, Sept. 8, for all ages titled "Celebrating Our Pennsylvania German Christian Heritage." It will be conducted at St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church, St. Paul Hall (old fire hall) and the Penryn Cemetery from 2-3:30 p.m.

St. Paul Lutheran Church, which is celebrating 250 years of ministry, is hosting the event. Members of two other Penryn congregations founded in the 18th century — Jerusalem United Church of Christ and White Oak Church of the Brethren — will share their heritage with the public.

Participants will circulate among six stations of hands-on activities, demonstrations and guided talks. One highlight will be a tour of the Penryn Cemetery to see remarkable examples of gravestone folk art with professor Gary Collison of York and genealogist Martha Xakellis of Lititz. Winged cherubs, flowers and compass stars decorate some gravestones.

Another station in the church sanctuary will look at pioneer church life and religious traditions with pastors of Penryn churches. An 18th century communion set including pieces crafted by Lancaster pewterer Johann Christoph Heyne will be on display. Religious artifacts from area churches and private collections will be displayed in the lower level of the church.

In St. Paul Hall, participants will find stations on parochial schools and fraktur, home life and food demonstrations, farmers and craftsmen. There will be food tasting, sauerkraut making, weaving and clothing demonstrations, a Conestoga wagon jack, a schnitzelbank, wooden hayforks and blacksmithing items made in Penryn. Participants may bring their baptismal date to fill in a blank taufschein (baptismal certificate).

Fraktur experts Russell and Corinne Earnest of East Berlin will identify and translate printed and hand done frakturs people bring to the event. The Earnests have written 18 books and hundreds of articles on Pennsylvania fraktur and genealogy. Their next book to be published this fall is titled "Family Registers of the Pennsylvania Germans." They have 25,000 frakturs in a computer database.

Ressler Mill Foundation Seeks Applicants For Grants

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Ressler Mill Foundation is making funds available to non-profit organizations that have an educational program to offer. In the last six years, the Ressler Mill Foundation has assigned a portion of its trust income to promote widening educational opportunities.

The program encourages the support of learning by preschoolers to senior citizens. "Education" may take very broad forms — including preschool education, day care for children of employed low income parents, essay contests, science fairs, library funding, museum support and health education.

Applications must be bona fide in educational goals. All applicants will need to supply a copy of their 501(c)(3) certification by the Internal Revenue Service along with a completed grant application. Requests for grant applications should be submitted in writing to Ressler Mill Foundation Grant Office, 29 East King Street, Room 14, Lancaster, PA 17602.

The Ressler Mill Foundation was established in 1967 by the late Anna C. Ressler and her brothers, the late W. Franklin and William K. Ressler, to preserve their family home and the mill their family operated since 1864. Last year the foundation awarded educational grants totaling $116,740.

The mill continues to operate as a museum and is located at the intersection of Stumptown Road and Route 772 (Newport Road) in Ronks. Each year over 10,000 visitors tour the mill and adjoining homestead.

Dry Weather Can Pose A Feeding Risk For Livestock

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Livestock grazing on plants or fed cereal grains during drought conditions may run the risk of being poisoned, causing illness and even death.

Ohio State University Extension livestock specialists said that certain plants like weeds and ornamentals are toxic, and during times of dry conditions when no other pasture feed is available, livestock may be inclined to consume them.

"Toxic weeds are typically in the pastures all the time and livestock normally leave them alone," said Steve Boyles, an Ohio State Extension beef cattle specialist. "The concern, however, is that during drought situations that's the only thing green still standing and that may make them more desirable to the animals."

Boyles said livestock producers should get to know some of the more common toxic weeds and plants and keep livestock well fed to ensure they would not be tempted to eat them. Some toxic plants include holly, rhubarb, ivy, morning glory and brackenfern.

"One concern may be the risk of cyanide poisoning," said Boyles. "Symptoms include labored breathing, staggering, trembling muscles and convulsions."

He said some sources of cyanide poisoning include twigs and leaves of wild and cultivated cherry trees and certain marsh grasses, such as arrowgrass. The grass contains a high salt content and lack of salt on the pasture may drive livestock to feed on the plant to meet salt requirements.

Farmers can minimize livestock illness from poisonous plants by following the suggested guidelines:

- Learn the identification of poisonous plants.

- Do not manage forage in high-density areas of poisonous plants.

- Supplement feed with salt, minerals and other nutrients.

- Avoid grazing animals in areas of abundant poisonous plants.

- Provide adequate water to prevent nonselective grazing.

A more dangerous source of cyanide poisoning is found in forage grasses, such as sorghum, sudangrasses and sorghum-sudangrass crosses. Boyles said the grasses produce prussic acid that, under dry conditions, can accumulate in high levels. The active component of the poison is hydrocyanic acid, which is extremely toxic to livestock, especially cattle and sheep.

Boyles recommends producers follow the suggested guidelines when grazing sorghum and sudangrass varieties:

- Plant sudangrass and sudangrass hybrids instead of sorghum varieties, since sudangrass hybrids have lower prussic acid potential.

- Do not graze sheep on sudangrass or hybrids until the plants are 12 inches to 15 inches tall; 18 inches to 24 inches tall for cattle.

- Do not graze sorghum-sudangrass hybrids until the plants are at least 24 inches tall.

- Regrowth sorghum should not be grazed until after the plant is completely killed by frost or dried. Young, regrowth forage can be very toxic.

- Do not graze forage varieties after a drought, or if the plants show visible signs of moisture stress. Test the plants for toxicity levels before grazing.

- Do not graze hungry livestock on forage varieties. The more they consume the greater the risk of being poisoned. It is much safer to offer feed such as hay or silage. In the case of silage, it should be allowed to ferment for at least two weeks before it is fed.

Information on prussic acid poisoning can be obtained through an Ohio State Extension fact sheet titled, "Livestock and Prussic Acid Poisoning" by logging on to the Ohio State Extension 2002 Drought Website at <http://corn.osu.edu/drought02>.

Producers should not only be aware of potentially poisonous plants, but also of plant toxins produced by other organisms.

Maurice Eastridge, an Ohio State Extension dairy specialist, said drought conditions increase the risk for the development of mycotoxins — toxins produced by molds during the growth or storage of cereal grains, especially corn. Some of the more common mycotoxins include aflatoxin, vomitoxin, citrin, ochratoxin, fumonisin, and zearalenone.

Eastridge said the best management practice to keep mold development under control is to store grain under optimal drying conditions before feeding it to livestock. Mold growth takes place in most feeds when moisture content is above 15 percent.

Many health-related problems associated with moldy feed can go unnoticed in livestock, but moldy feed is generally unpalatable and will result in less feed intake, which leads to weight loss and reduced milk production.

"Cattle are more resistant to mycotoxins than other livestock, like swine and poultry," said Eastridge. "But it's important to monitor feed intake and conduct standard feed tests. Not all mycotoxins are regulated by the FDA."

Aflatoxins, produced by strains of the fungus Aspergillus, are the only mycotoxins regulated by the Food and Drug Administration. Corn grain containing over 20 parts per billion of aflatoxin cannot be marketed commercially, and milk with .5 parts per billion is also prohibited for sale.

Additional information on molds, mycotoxins and poisonous plants is available through an Ohio State Extension fact sheet titled, "What Do I Do If Mycotoxins Are Present?" by logging on to the Ohio State Extension 2002 Drought Website at <http://corn.osu.edu/drought02>.

LDP's Available For 2001 Stored Grain

YORK (York Co.) — The Farm Bill recently signed by President Bush authorizes Loan Deficiency Payments (LDP's) on contract crops grown on farms without Production Flexibility Contracts (PFC's).

According to Wayne Kurtz, executive director of the York County Farm Service Agency, "This provision is similar to the regulations for the 2000 crop year, so interested county producers should provide sales documents to our office. These documents will establish a LDP rate, if any, even though the grain is already sold. Producers who have crop year 2001 grain currently stored on farm may obtain a farm stored LDP any time."

Kurtz concluded by stating "not much corn activity is anticipated since prices have strengthened from last year." The deadline to submit these requests are 30 days after the new rules are published in the federal register.

Interested York County producers can contact the county FSA office at (717) 755-2966, ext. 2, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

FIELDSTAR READY

INTRODUCING THE WHITE 8000 SERIES PLANTERS

You've done your research, prepared your field, and picked the perfect seed variety. Now plant that perfect row, with the 8000 Series planter from White. Belmont Model 2016 skid steer trailer, first in company's new line of trailers.

Belmont Announces New Trailer Line

GORDONVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Belmont Machine Company, Gordonville, recently introduced its new line of trailers for use in landscape, small farm and construction applications.

Competitively priced, the trailers are built with the heaviest grade materials, including six-inch channel steel frames reinforced every two feet, two-inch pressure treated deck, and electric brakes on all four wheels.

The Model 2016 skid steer trailer is among the first of the company's new line. The trailer measures 22 feet four inches long, 102 inches wide, with a deck size of 16 feet by 83 inches, has tandem axles, and easy-load ladder ramps for a wide range of equipment, and has a 10,000 GVW rating. The ramps are engineered for easy operation for loading and unloading.

Standard features include heavy duty 2 5/16-inch ball or pintle hitch, heavy duty drop leg jack, built in chain and binder storage, built in pockets for storing skid steer forks or other implements. All modular electric parts are sealed against water damage, and the wiring harness is internally grounded.

All steel parts are primed with a zinc phosphate primer for corrosion resistance, and protected with a unique high gloss polyurethane enamel that resists chips and scratches twice as long as conventional alkyd paint. The company also provides comprehensive parts and service from its factory. Belmont can be reached at (717) 768-7393. Dealer inquiries are welcomed.

Hytest® Seeds Introduces Three New Alfalfa Varieties

BOULDER CITY, Nev. — Hytest® Seeds has introduced Hytest 410 and Hytest 520 alfalfa varieties, bred for improved persistence, very fast regrowth after cutting and high yields through the use of long-term stress nurseries, and new Hytest 340 PLH alfalfa, which represents the latest breakthrough in potato leafhopper resistance and performance.

Now available for the 2002-2003 planting season, these new releases from Hytest Seeds combine exceptional forage quality with excellent cell wall digestibility and In Vitro digestibility scores for optimum milk production.

Hytest 410 alfalfa combines outstanding yield potential and exceptional forage quality with a late fall dormancy rating of 3.9 and a superior winter survival rating of 1.0. Highly resistant to the most damaging crown and root rot diseases, including Bacterial Wilt, Fusarium Wilt, Verticillium Wilt, Anthracnose — Race 1, Phytophthora Root Rot, and Aphanomyces — Race 1, Hytest 410 earns a perfect "30 of 30" cumulative score on the Wisconsin Disease Index.

Adapted across all major central and northern fall dormancy zones, this "next generation" multifoliate demonstrates excellent early seedling vigor, extremely fast recovery after cutting, very fine stems with high multileaf expression and consistently produces high quality and forage as measured on an RVF basis.

A four-year study shows that the improved persistence of Hytest 410 produced an average of 31.02 tons of alfalfa per year, for an average of 1.2 to 6.39 more tons per acre per year than the most widely planted commercial varieties. Feeding trials have also shown that Hytest 410 produced more total pounds of milk per acre than DK140, Pioneer® 5454, Affinity +Z, Magnum IV or 53Q60.

Hytest 520 alfalfa combines the exceptionally fast recovery and high yield potential of a fall dormancy five variety with the winterhardiness and superior persistence to survive in northern climates including the Cen-

Hy-Energy Annual Ryegrass Offers Up To Three Weeks Longer Grazing

JOHNSTON, Iowa — Following the successful introduction of Hy-Energy Brand Tetraploid Annual Ryegrass, Hytest® Seeds announces that supplies will be expanded for the 2002-2003 planting season.

Hy-Energy annual ryegrass offers beef and dairy producers a high yielding, highly palatable forage that provides a two- to three-week longer grazing period than other diploid and tetraploid types, including Gult. Ideal for extended winter grazing, Hy-Energy annual ryegrass produces high yields with aggressive forage growth, excellent palatability and high crude protein levels. This "next generation" tetraploid also produces a larger leaf mass than other diploid and tetraploid types, with excellent rust resistance, vigor, and very good heat and cold tolerance characteristics.

trials, Mid-Atlantic and Western regions. Highly resistant to all major crown and root rot diseases, Hytest 520 outyields other widely planted alfalfa varieties to maximize yields and profits for beef, dairy and commercial hay producers. Hytest 340PLH represents the latest breakthrough in potato leafhopper resistance and performance. Developed using a newly patented PLH breeding process, Hytest 340PLH combines superior resistance to the most challenging insect pests with high resistance to all five major alfalfa diseases in the eastern U.S. — Phytophthora Root Rot, Bacterial Wilt, Fusarium Wilt, Anthracnose and Aphanomyces, as well as resistance to Verticillium Wilt.

tetraploid types, including Gult.

Ideal for extended winter grazing, Hy-Energy annual ryegrass produces high yields with aggressive forage growth, excellent palatability and high crude protein levels. This "next generation" tetraploid also produces a larger leaf mass than other diploid and tetraploid types, with excellent rust resistance, vigor, and very good heat and cold tolerance characteristics.

Home Depot To Sell New Line Of Deere Lawn Tractors

MOLINE, Ill. — Deere & Company and The Home Depot, the world's largest home improvement retailer, recently announced an agreement to sell a new line of John Deere-branded lawn and garden tractors in the retailer's more than 1,400 home improvement stores beginning early next spring.

"The Home Depot has a proud history of providing our customers not only with the best service and prices, but with the best quality brands," said Bob Nardelli, chairman, president and CEO, The Home Depot. "John Deere's reputation for quality, product support and brand awareness is unsurpassed. We're delighted to be their first-ever mass retail partner for John Deere-branded lawn tractors."

The agreement places John Deere-branded riding mowing equipment for sale in the mass channel for the first time in John Deere's history. Models of the new John Deere 100-series lawn tractors will be sold at The Home Depot and at John Deere dealers. The dealers will continue to sell John Deere's broad range of lawn and garden equipment. Additionally, John Deere dealers will provide support and service for lawn tractors sold both at the dealers and at The Home Depot.

"We believe this agreement is unique by offering a new line of quality John Deere lawn tractors in the mass channel with the renowned service and support capability of John Deere dealers," said Robert W. Lane, chairman and CEO, Deere & Company.

Terms of the agreement were not disclosed but the companies said the new 100-series by John Deere replaces Scotts® tractors, which have been built for Home Depot by John Deere since 1998. The new 100-series lawn tractors will be offered in cutting widths from 42 inches to 54 inches with various horsepower ratings.

John Jenkins, president of Deere's Commercial & Consumer Equipment Division, said, "By marketing the new 100-series John Deere lawn tractor simultaneously through Home Depot and our dedicated John Deere dealers, we will reach a wider range of consumers for both John Deere lawn equipment and the service and support capabilities of John Deere dealers. Based on this, we expect a significant increase in the number of lawn tractors sold both at The Home Depot and at John Deere dealers."

As part of the agreement, Deere said it would discontinue manufacturing the Scotts® brand and also eliminate the Sabre® brand of lawn tractors sold through John Deere dealers. Deere said the new 100-series will be available at Home Depot stores and John Deere dealers for the 2003 selling season and will be manufactured at an existing facility in Greeneville, Tennessee.

Farm Bureau Acquisition Of Agway Insurance Approved

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Indiana Farm Bureau Insurance Companies announced that their acquisition of Agway Insurance Company has been approved by the New York Insurance Department. The $21 million transaction is complete.

Meanwhile, Farm Bureau also announced that Agway Insurance Company will be renamed Countryway Insurance Company, effective immediately.

Farm Bureau had declared in mid-June its intent to purchase 100 percent of the stock of the DeWitt, N.Y., insurance firm but needed regulatory approval before completing the deal. Agway Insurance Company previously was a wholly-owned subsidiary of Agway Inc. The name change was part of the acquisition agreement with Agway Inc.

"We're pleased that the approval process went so quickly and smoothly," said Don Villwock, Farm Bureau president. "We now can benefit from the great synergy between Farm Bureau and Countryway, and extend our services to farmers as well as other customers beyond Indiana's borders."

"We believe Indiana Farm Bureau Insurance is a great match all the way around for Agway Insurance and its employees," said Agway CEO Don Cardarelli. "Indiana Farm Bureau is strongly committed to farm and rural customers, has similar product lines, and is dedicated to the same core values. The sale also is an important step in helping Agway Inc. improve its financial profile."

Countryway will remain a separate entity headquartered in DeWitt and will retain most of its employees, according to Villwock. It will continue to operate as a property and casualty insurance company through 300 independent agents in New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, and Virginia.

Dairyland Seed Announces Alfalfa Sweepstakes Winner

WEST BEND, Wis. — A Newman Grove, Nebraska alfalfa producer has won a $1,000 vacation trip for four to Wisconsin Dells, compliments of Dairyland Seed. Kenneth Nelson won Dairyland Seed's "Have More Fun!" alfalfa sweepstakes.

"We wanted to give producers the opportunity to 'Have More Fun!' with a relaxing vacation on us," said Tom Strachota, CEO of Dairyland Seed. "We also wanted alfalfa producers to know that using the best genetics from Dairyland Seed produces the best alfalfa. Planting alfalfa with the best genetics certainly pays off at harvest — and that's more fun."

Magnum V alfalfa has finished first in 86 university trials in 21 states. Dairyland Seed's record in alfalfa state trials over the past 25 years is unparalleled, leading all alfalfa companies with nearly twice as many wins as the second-place competitor.

A commitment to research for more than two decades has yielded such successes as team Magnum alfalfas; Forecast 1001 and Forecast 3001, alfalfa varieties with maturities like corn; and the world's first hybrid alfalfa — HybriForce™-400.

What's heat forming?

In metal roofing and siding it's the best way to go! Here is why. Everlast heats the paint very hot on their Everlast II product before they cut and form it into roofing and siding. Tests have proven that heating paint before cutting and bending prevents virtually all microscopic cracks in the paint. Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important. Normally manufacturers form and cut at room temperature. Unfortunately that cracks the paint causing early rust at formed bends and edges.

Getting Milk Cold?

Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb. from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

- Features grower-to grower direct seed sales
- SDSU tested and researched
- Distributed from Parkersburg, PA
- $1.55/lb in 60 lb bags

- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at 2 and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased"

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area
